Suspend Trials As Move to Stem Ferguson Pardons

Governor "Ma" Ferguson Maintains Her Daily Average of Clemency Pardons, Bringing Total To 3,177 —Criminal Calendar Discontinued.

Austin, Tex., Jan. 12 (AP).—With clemency proclamations issued by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson standing at 3,177—a new record for this state—one Texas county today had discontinued its criminal calendar until the expiration of her two year term January 18. The postponement was granted when the district attorney at San Antonio announced a man convicted there last week had already been given a full pardon.

Meanwhile, the state Legislature which convened yesterday, was considering a bill introduced by Senator Thomas B. Love of Dallas to repeal the measure enacted two years ago granting amnesty to former Governor James E. Ferguson, who was impeached in 1917. The bill restoring Ferguson's political rights was passed, and signed by his wife shortly after she was inaugurated. She made her husband's "vindication" the chief issue of her campaign.

Senator Love declared the amnesty law was passed in violation of the state Constitution and that "it misrepresented the ideals and standard of official conduct of the people of Texas."

Senator J. W. Reid and other leaders in the recent special session which investigated several state departments, declared they would support the bill. Supporters of the Fergusons announced they would organize immediately in oposition to the measure and forecast a spirited fight which would result in defeat of the act.

Ferguson, who has been mentioned as a candidate for United States senator, would be ineligible to hold public office if the measure was repealed.

While District Attorney C. M. Chambers of Bexar county was asking for the discontinuance of criminal cases on the ground that "if a conviction was gained it would in all probability be set aside by her excellency, the governor." Mrs. Ferguson maintained her daily average of clemency orders. She granted thirty-two pardons and several paroles yesterday. The list included a pardon for E. A. Dechard of Dallas, one of the state senators who voted to impeach Ferguson. Dechard was later convicted of a swindling charge and had served four months of a 12 year sentence.

Cat Saved Lives Of Gill Family

Animal's Noises Awoke Frank Gill's Family Who Were Becoming Affected by Gas Which Escaped from Leak in Street Main.

To the presence of a cat in the house, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gill and family of 22 West Union street probably owe their lives. The Gill family retired Monday night and some time during the early morning Mr. Gill was awakened by the family cat which was prowling about the house uttering most unusual feline noises. Thinking the cat desired to leave the house Mr. Gill arose and started toward the door to put the animal out. He became dizzy and fell. His wife was awakened by the noise, arose and she, too, appeared to be weak and dizzy, as were the two children.

It was then the family realized that there was gas in the house in sufficient quantities to cause nausea. The gas fortunately affected the family cat first and caused it to spread the alarm of danger.

N. H. Polhemus, in charge of construction for the Kingston Gas & Electric Company was notified and a search was made by company employes to determine how the gas found its way in the house. Although the house is connected with the gas main, there is no meter in the house and no gas is used by the Gill family. The gas escaping from a break in the street main made its way either along the sewer or the gas line into the house in sufficient quantities to fill the house.

As soon as the cause of the trouble was located Mr. Gill opened the doors and admitted fresh air, and on arrival at the scene the gas company men immediately gave the occupants medical attention. As it was impossible to stop the flow of gas in the house, the family was moved out by employes of the gas company and quartered elsewhere until the leak is located and repaired.

Through the timely warning by the family cat none of the members of the Gill family suffered any bad effects from the gas and Mr. Gill was able to resume his work next day. Had not the cat given the alarm it is probable that the entire family would have been asphyxiated.

Howard Myer Homestead Sold.

The Howard Myer Homestead, located in Hurley with two acres of ground and part of the old orchard running back to the Esopus creek, has been sold to George Bates from Arthursburgh, N. Y. Mr. Bates has already moved in his new house and will make extensive improvements the coming season. This sale was negotiated by Frank S. Hyatt, real estate broker, for John Sass, county clerk.

Bills to Amend The Baumes Law

Assemblyman Lord Would Amend Baumes Law to Make Life Imprisonment Mandatory for Fourth Offenders Only When Criminal is Armed.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 12 (AP).—A punishment to fit the crime is sought in bills prepared by Assemblyman Bert Lord, Republican, Chenango, for introduction in the legislature.

Assemblyman Lord believes the country chicken thief, who "probably never saw, much less owned, a dangerous weapon," is not to be compared with the burglar who totes a gun. His bills, based on suggestions of Supreme Court Justice Hill of Norwich, would amend the Baumes laws to make life imprsionment mandatory for fourth offenders only when the criminal or his confederates is armed with a weapon.

"That is all that was intended by the sponsors of this statute," Assemblyman Lord said today, "but owing to their lack of acquaintance with criminal laws and procedure, they have built up a vicious and unjustifiable statute which has been approved by the unthinking."

The Assemblyman called up the figure of Jean Val Jean, Victor Hugo's martyr, in a denunciation of another section of the crime law which requires that a second offender be given the longest sentence specified in the code as punishment for the offense. The statute, he declared, brings back the "frightful conditions of centuries ago".

"Unquestionably," the Assemblyman said, "there are thousands of men in this state who some time after they were 16 years of age committed some crime that is catalogued as a felony while for a decade or a score of years they have lived lives of rectitude."

Under the Baumes law, he explained, these men, if they drive an auto in a way which would make them guilty of assault, second degree, would go to prison for not less than ten years even though they were innocent of criminal intent.

U. S. Marines at The Escondido

Arrival of 300 American Marines Are Making Rama and the Escondido River Safe For American Interests There.

Managua, Nicaragua Jan. 12 (AP).—Three hundred American marines are making the town of Rama and the Escondido river safe for the American interests there. A naval transport, a gunboat and seven destroyers are at El Bluff at the mouth of the river.

The arrival of the marines, it is thought here, will probably save Rama from an attack, as the Liberals are strong in that region and the government forces are weak from illness and lack of food.

A Managua dispatch yesterday said American naval forces had ascended the Escondido river sixty miles to establish a neutral zone; the American forces, it was added, had been waiting for the El Bluff bar to calm in order that they might cross it without danger.

Another neutral zone was established at the mouth of the Wawa river, in northeastern Nicaragua, headquarters of many American mahogany companies.

Water Board Issues Booklet

Report on the Water Supply Investigation of City Issued in Book Form and May be Had by Taxpayers at Water Board Office.

The board of water commissioners have had printed in book form a report of the recent investigation of the water supply system of Kingston, and copies of the book may be obtained by taxpayers by calling at the board office at the city hall.

The report is a complete one, covering about one hundred pages with a number of maps showing the present water system, and outlining plans for increasing the efficiency of the system.

At the last meeting of the common council every alderman was presented with a book.

Fire Damages Two Albany Buildings

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 12 (AP).—Fire today caused damage estimated at $20,000 in two 14 story buildings that are being erected side by side at the corner of State and North Pearl streets by the New York State National Bank and the Home Savings Bank.

The flames, originating from a heater on one of the upper floors, rendered useless the electrical equipment for the State bank's elevators, which were soon to have been installed. In fighting the fire the city's new high pressure water tower, purchased with a view to affording protection for the bank buildings and other tall structures in process of construction here, was used for the first time.

Health Board Discusses Milk

Two of Local Dealers Handle Milk Bottled and Pasteurized in Poughkeepsie and Question of Bottles and Caps Corresponding Arises.

Two pint bottles of milk sat on the desk of Dr. Daniel Connelly, city health officer, Tuesday evening in the offices of the board of health at the city hall, and as the members of the board gathered in the office to attend the regular monthly meeting they glanced questioningly at the milk bottles and wondered if Dr. Connelly was on a milk diet. He was not; the milk was there for discussion and not refreshment.

Dr. Connelly said that the two bottles, one of them bearing the cap of M. Liebig, the West Pierpont street milk dealer, and the other the cap of the Hurley Dairy on Hasbrouck avenue had been furnished him by another milk dealer, who has raised the question if under the provisions of the new milk ordinance the bottle and cap should not correspond.

In other words, said Dr. Connelly, the bottle stated that the milk it contained was bottled by Rogers in Poughkeepsie, while the card-board cap contained the name of the local dealer.

Dr. Harold Clarke, food inspector, was of the opinion that it was not necessary as the bottle gave the information where the milk was produced and bottled and the cap the name of the dealer selling it. He said that the Rogers' pasteurization plant was one of the finest in the Hudson river valley and that the milk was of the best grade. It was pasteurized, bottled and capped in Poughkeepsie, placed in trucks and delivered in Kingston daily to the two dealers.

This Poughkeepsie milk had been tested at the city laboratory the same as other milk sold in Kingston and had met every requirement of the milk standards adopted by the health board.

Commissioner Hickey said that as long as the milk met the required standard the question of whether cap and bottle should correspond should be laid on the table, and made a motion to that effect which was adopted.

Bills and claims were read and audited and the reports of the officers, which will be found elsewhere, were adopted.

Mrs. C. E. Hasbrouck, who is a member of the board, was not present at the meeting as she and her husband were in New York from which city they sailed today on a three months Mediterranean trip.

The board then adjourned.

Landis Absolves All Players in Alleged Scandal

Commissioner Decides "Gift Fund" of $850 Raised by White Sox to Reward Tiger Pitchers Was Not Corrupt—No Action in Cobb-Speaker Case.

Chicago, Jan. 12 (AP).—Commissioner Landis today joined the chorus of thirty-five baseball players in branding as "an absolute lie" the charges made by Swede Risberg and Chick Gandil that the Detroit Tigers sloughed a four game series to the White Sox in 1917 so that the White Sox could beat Boston in the tight race for the American League pennant.

The commissioner in a 2,000 word decision exonerated all the accused players and decided that the "gift fund" of $850 raised by the White Sox to reward the Tiger pitchers was not corrupt. He declared it was an act of impropriety, reprehensiveness and censurable but not an act of criminality. He said Risberg and Gandil had only incriminated themselves and being already on the eligible list their story could not affect them, also that their story does not blacken the "lily whites".

Commissioner Landis in his decision gives face to the story told by Bill James, the former Tiger pitcher, that the money was not paid as a bribe for thrown games but as a reward for Detroit pitchers beating Boston in a crucial series played in the 1917 pennant race. That beating helped the White Sox in winning the pennant and the stories of the thirty odd accused players were that the money was paid only as a present for good work against the Red Sox.

Criticizes Deal.

Commissioner Landis's decision criticized the deal but failed to censure the ballplayers for having any part in it. The alleged crooked series was played more than three years before Commissioner Landis assumed control of baseball as commissioner.

Commissioner Landis declined comment on his decision. He handed copies of his decision to newspapermen and then left for his hotel to plan a Florida trip that will include a tour of the training camps.

Players Exonerated.

The decision gives blanket absolution to twenty odd players now active in the major and minor leagues. Among them are three managers—Ray Schalk of the Chicago White Sox, Owen Bush of the Pirates and John Collins of the Des Moines Club of the Western League. Others cleared of the charges of corruption are Clarence Rowland, manager of the White Sox in 1917 and now an American League umpire; Eddie Collins, pilot of the White Sox last year and now of the Athletics; Kid Gleason, coach of the Athletics; Howard Ehmke, pitcher with the Athletics; Red Faber, White Sox pitcher; Harry Heilmann and George Dauss of the Tigers; Eddie Murphy, formerly of the Pirates, who was released to Rochester; Dave Danforth of Milwaukee; Reb Russell of Indianapolis; Roy Wilkinson of Louisville; Bob Veach, Toledo; Oscar Stanage, Pirate coach, and Oscar Vitt, now of the coast league; Nemo Leiboldt, Columbus; George Cunningham, Birmingham and Byrd Linn, of Reading, Pa.

Cobb-Speaker Case.

Commissioner Landis did not deal with the case involving Ty Cobb or Tris Speaker. These two former American League managers have been attempting to learn their status and also seeking vindication of charges that they participated in a "fixed" game series in 1919 in the interest of a betting coup. Both Speaker and Cobb were said to be awaiting Landis's verdict in the White Sox-Detroit situation before pressing the commissioner for any action upon their case.

Neither did the decision mention Buck Weaver, ousted from baseball because of the crooked world series of 1919, who appealed to Commissioner Landis for reinstatement.

Slayer of 13 Convicted by Jury

Farewell, Tex., Jan. 12 (AP).—George J. Hassell, farmer, who confessed to slaying thirteen persons, including his wife and eight children, today was found guilty of the murder of his stepson, Aldon Hassell, by a jury in district court here. The death penalty was recommended. The jury deliberated less than two hours.

Hassell sat unmoved as the verdict was read and when led to his cell maintained the same indifference he has shown since his arrest, when the bodies of his wife and her children were found in a dugout on their ranch near here.

In his confession he told of marrying his brother's widow after her husband had been killed while working with Hassell on an Oklahoma farm. He then moved to the Panhandle ranch here, bringing his brother's eight children, who ranged in age from 2 to 21 years.

Receivers Guard Chaplin Millions

Pending Outcome of Divorce Action By His Estranged Wife—Screen Actor Will Fight Every Charge in Petition.

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 12(AP).—Receivers mounted guard today over the California millions of Charles Chaplin to protect the interests of his estranged wife, Lita Grey Chaplin, whose suit for divorce asks a partition of the film comedian's fortune of $16,000,000.

The receivers, W. I. Gilbert, attorney, and Herman Spitzell, real estate operator, were appointed by a superior court order yesterday as a result of a surprise move on the part of Mrs. Chaplin's attorneys, who filed an application for an ex-parte receivership.

The court empowered the receivers to take over all of the actor's properties and funds in California pending the outcome of the divorce suit. Gilbert recently was an attorney for Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson in the conspiracy case which has been dropped. Mrs. Chaplin contends that $10,000,000 of the fortune is community property.

Receivers' First Step.

The first step to take possession of the comedian's holdings here was taken when notice of receivership was served on officials of the Chaplin studios in Hollywood.

The receivers indicated they next would take possession of Chaplin's forty room mansion in Beverly Hills.

Attorneys for Mrs. Chaplin said they had advised their client of her legal right to move back into the comedian's home and maintain her residence there if she so desired. When Mrs. Chaplin left the actor's home last November, she declared she would never return.

Chaplin Gone to New York.

The affidavit which placed the actor's funds and property in the hands of court receivers was sworn to by Edward L. McMurray, an uncle of Mrs. Chaplin and her chief counsel. The court was advised that Chaplin had left the jurisdiction of the California courts and had gone to New York with the intention of completing an unfinished picture. Chaplin could not be served with papers because of the inability to find him or any officer of his company or corporation.

With the appointment of the receivers, each was required to post $200,000 bond. Mrs. Chaplin was required to furnish bond in the amount of $100,000.

Lloyd Wright, attorney for Chaplin, declared the screen actor would fight every charge in Mrs. Chaplin's petition and would oppose her effort to retain custody of their two children.

Mrs. Chaplin's allegation that Chaplin had confessed intimacy with certain motion picture actresses here left Hollywood seething with speculation.

Dry Resolutions Blocked at Albany

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 12 (AP).—Action on prohibition resolutions is blocked in the New York legislature but the opinions of a few of its members already are written in the record.

The Republican party, in the opinion of Assemblyman Louis A. Cullivier, Democrat, New York, ought to choose the skull and cross bones for its emblem. Use of poisons as denaturants, he thinks is a "caprice of the federal government not contemplated by the Eighteenth Amendment."

A resolution calling on Congress to forbid the use of poisons failed of immediate action in the Assembly yesterday when Majority Leader Russell G. Dunmore arose "to debate." Under the rules the resolution went over to next Monday night. Minority Leader Bloch, who sought passage of the resolution without delay, moved for a suspension of the rule but the motion was defeated. Mr. Bloch declared the Legislature should "lose no time in demanding the Congress stop killing the people of the state by poison."

Majority Leader John Knight of the Senate, announcing an adjournment, jolted the upper house with a declaration that he would expect the Senate "to begin then to pass upon bills referred to you." The purpose of the announcement, he explained, was to obtain a "calendar to act upon by the week after next."

The Senate session lasted only 12 minutes but the Assembly adjournment was delayed by the prohibition strife. Both houses will reconvene next Monday night.

CASE SETTLED, COURT ADJOURNS TO FRIDAY

County court was convened at 10 o'clock this morning. The one case on the day calendar, Harry Lane and Emerson Lane against Charles Cole, an action on contract, was announced as settled. N. H. Fessenden appeared for plaintiff and Grant M. Ritzinger for the defendant.

No further cases being ready for trial the jurors were excused until Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock and an adjournment was taken until Friday morning at 10 o'clock without a jury.

Criminal cases will be taken up to trial next week.

Smith's Ambitions Draw Comment

Tammany Leader Predicts Governor Will Win on Prohibition Issue—Republicans Say Business Men Will Want to Know Where Smith Stands.

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—Presidential ambitions of Governor Alfred E. Smith today drew comment from both Republican and Democratic circles.

George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany Hall, in a statement predicted Governor Smith would win the Democratic nomination on the prohibition issue, while the bureau of statistical research of the Republican State Committee said the business man would first desire the governor's opinion on the tariff and on operation of public utilities before any nominations were made.

Olvany said he had received letters from widely separated states, especially in the south, indicating a pronounced drift of sentiment toward Smith. William Gibbs McAdoo of California, he said, will have little success in organizing effective opposition to Smith in this state. Prohibition will "unquestionably" be the chief issue at the 1928 Democratic convention, in Mr. Olvany's opinion.

The Republican bureau said that before Smith is accepted as a presidential nominee, the American business man will desire "to be informed whether the agile Mr. Smith is a high or low tariff man, whether he intends to apply the socialistic principles of public ownership and operation of public utilities to national industries, and whether the financial activities which have increased state expenses by 226 per cent are to be carried to Washington by Tammany".

Further Democratic comment came from Franklin D. Roosevelt, manager of Governor Smith's 1924 presidential campaign. He said that regardless of who was nominated the New York Democrats would abide by the result of the convention.

Two Children Die In Prospect Fire

Mother Breaks Arm in Jumping From Window After Unsuccessful Effort to Save Children—Father, His Brother and Third Child Escape.

Prospect, N. Y., Jan. 12 (AP).—Two children were burned to death and their mother suffered a broken arm in jumping from a window after an unsuccessful effort to save them from fire which burned the Adirondack Inn and a dwelling house here today. The father and a third child and brother of the father also jumped from the window and escaped.

The dead are Ruth Stramm, 14, and her brother, Edward, eight.

Mrs. Edward Stramm rushed for the room in which Ruth and Edward were sleeping but was blocked by a wall of smoke and flames. The husband went to the third child's room, aroused the child and his brother, who jumped to safety.

Mr. Stramm then went to his wife's assistance. Unable to reach their children's bedroom, both, nearly overcome by smoke, leaped to the ground.

The building was burned with a loss of more than $20,000.

Trooper Coons Injured Skating

Russell Coons, Trooper in C Troop at Sidney, who has been stationed in Ulster county for the past several seasons, was severely injured Saturday while skating near his home at Pine Plains. Trooper Coons, who was on furlough, fell, striking his head on the ice and rendering him unconscious for several hours. He was taken home and later regained consciousness. Tuesday he was brought to the Kingston City Hospital, where an X-ray was taken to determine the extent of his injuries. The X-ray showed that the skull had not been fractured, and he later left the hospital.

For several seasons Trooper Coons has been stationed at Woodstock with Sergeant Cunningham, but this winter was sent to East Kingston to join the mounted patrol at that place when Trooper Metcalf became ill.

Civil War Nurse Is Dead at 91

Corning, N. Y., Jan 12 (AP)—Mrs. Chauncey Thorpe, 91, prominent Bath resident, who knew President Abraham Lincoln, died at her home late yesterday. During the Civil War Mrs. Thorpe visited Lincoln, who granted her request to permit her husband, seriously wounded at Cold Harbor, to return home to recuperate, after all other attempts had failed.

President Lincoln also detailed four soldiers to accompany Mr. Thorpe to his home near Ithaca where he eventually recovered. Mrs. Thorpe served as a nurse in the hospitals of the Army of the Potomac. She was a native of Rensselaerville, N. Y.

President Calles Blames Mexican Catholic Clergy

Mexican Catholic Episcopato Is Accused By Calles of Responsibility For Recent Catholic Uprisings In Mexico.

Mexico City, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Mexican Catholic Episcopate is accused of responsibility for recent Catholic uprisings in Mexico under the banner "Long live Christ the King" in a statement issued today by the office of President Calles.

The Catholic Episcopate of Mexico City, "with the knowledge that international relations with the United States would be severely strained or unfavorably modified beginning January 1, showing that they still are traitors to the country," ordered the Catholic clergy to induce the largest possible number of men to revolt against the Mexican government, the statement says.

Reviewing "Catholic rebellious activities" since January 1, the statement declares that the clergymen's efforts have failed except in a few states.

The federal government, the statement continues, is convinced that the rebels are acting under specific instructions from the episcopate and has issued orders to punish energetically clergymen guilty of inciting to rebellion, the latter being responsible for the uprising. Although they lack military ability, "it is distressful to be forced to sacrifice the lives of these men who, through their fanaticism, follow blindly the episcopate's instructions.

The statement charges that the clergymen's activities resulted in revolt in six different states and in the death of 24 federal soldiers and 75 Catholic insurrectionists. In one case a letter signed by Rene Capistran Garza, reported provincial president of a "new Mexican government" was found on the body of a rebel.

The statement declares that the Mexican government is convinced that the rebels are acting under specific instructions from the Episcopate and that orders have been issued to punish energetically clergymen guilty of inciting to rebellion.

Threw Gavel to Preserve Order

And It Struck in the Breast the One Who Arose to a Point of Order, Whereupon a Warrant Was Sworn Out and An Arrest Followed.

"I arise to a point of order," shouted Jan Kruszenski of No. 82 Chambers street, Sunday evening at the meeting of a Polish society in the Polish school house on Delaware avenue.

"You are out of order; sit down," retorted President Konstance Guziak sharply, as he pounded on the desk with the gavel.

"I arise to a point of order," insisted Mr. Kruszenski, refusing to resume his seat.

"I told you once and I won't tell you again to sit down," said President Guziak.

And as Mr. Kruszenski was still standing, President Guziak drew back his mighty right arm and let fly with his gavel. It struck Mr. Kruszenski in the chest with a resounding thump and he abruptly sat down.

But that did not end the incident with Mr. Kruszenski for he called to see Judge Shufeldt at the city hall and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Mr. Guziak, charging him with assault in the third degree. The warrant was served on Mr. Guziak, who resides at 391 Abeel street, on Tuesday by Policeman Robert F. Healey and the trial was set for this morning in police court.

As both Mr. Guziak and Mr. Kruszenski when they became excited in court this morning began to talk rapidly first in Polish and then in English, and then again in Polish, it was difficult to ascertain just how the trouble did start, but anyway Mr. Guziak pleaded guilty to striking Mr. Kruszenski with the wooden gavel, and was fined $10 by Judge Shufeldt.

Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary Meeting.

The January meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. will be held on Friday at 3 p. m. The devotions will be in charge of Mrs. Charles Hicks. The program will consist of an address by Ulster County Boy Scouts Executive Howard M. Smith. As matters of importance are to be decided upon, a full attendance is desired.

TO RESTORE TOMB OF OLD VIRGINIAN

Posterity to Rebuild Sepulcher of Colonial Figure.

Nearly two hundred years ago Robert Carter of Corotoman, an outstanding personality in the pre-Revolutionary history of northern Virginia, died at his palatial home on the banks of the Rappahannock in Lancaster county, and was buried in the nearby churchyard of Christ Episcopal church.

He left 300,000 acres of land, 1,000 slaves and 550,000 in money. His vast holdings and his tremendous influence caused him to be known to his contemporaries as King Carter, and posterity still applies to him that sobriquet.

When he died in 1732, at the age of sixty-nine, and was buried beside his two wives, Judith and Elizabeth, a magnificent tombstone of white Italian marble was erected. For more than a century and a half this Virginia aristocrat slept peacefully in the little churchyard.

About thirty years ago, however, his bones were rudely stirred. A charge of dynamite was set off at the tomb, the imposing monument which marked the king's last resting place was shattered and the sarcophagus of this monarch of the Old Dominion was rifled.

The three Carter gravestones were wrecked, and these, for the past 30 years, have been little more than broken fragments. Some of these fragments, including the bronze plate bearing the epitaph of King Carter, have been taken by souvenir hunters.

In consequence, several of the king's descendants have recently launched a movement to restore the monuments. A committee headed by Mrs. O. H. Funsten of Richmond has been organized, and plans are being formulated for assembling the scattered pieces and reconstructing the sarcophagi.

An effort is being made to locate the souvenirs carried off by tourists, and some of these have already been returned to the committee. The three Carters lie near the road, and the mass of broken stone is plainly visible to travelers passing along the highway.

Hence their posterity is banding together with a view to restoring the tombs to their pristine grandeur.

King Carter was born in 1663, the son of John Carter, who had come over from England as the first of that name. John was a well-to-do planter, and was prominent in the colony as a burgess and councillor. His wealth enabled him to send his son to England for a part of his schooling.

When his father died, Robert inherited a large estate, and, being a man of great energy, marked business acumen and dominant personality, he steadily increased his patrimony.

He began his public career as a burgess from Lancaster in 1691. Subsequently he was chosen treasurer of the colony, speaker of the house of burgesses and member of the council, in which last named body he served 27 years. He was finally elected president of the council and was acting governor for more than a year, from the death of Governor Drysdale until the arrival of Governor Gooch.

Colonel Carter's estate grew to such enormous proportions that Governor Nicholson on one occasion dubbed him king, and the name stuck. His prestige was that of a feudal lord, and he became the most powerful landholder in his section of the Old Dominion.—Baltimore Sun.

Many Postage Stamps

The little postage stamp is one of a huge family. There were more than 18,000,000,000 of them born in Washington last year, being sufficient for supplying each man, woman and child in the country with 160. They represented a face value of $430,000,000 and required 900 tons of paper and 570,000 pounds of ink in their manufacture at the bureau of engraving and printing. Placed end to end they would girdle the earth eleven times. The cost of producing them was about one cent for each 125.

Their Identity

"As we were coming along the road from the westward," we remarked, "we observed one man picking up a few small gravel, two more men listlessly pitching pennies and three other men asleep in the shade."

"That was the highway gang working themselves to death," replied the landlord of the tavern where we had halted.—Kansas City Star.

—plus an Amazing Reduction in Prices:

America has always expected great things from its greatest industry. But the announcement of the Most Beautiful Chevrolet has been the automotive sensation of all time!

Here is a car which in beauty, luxury, quality and modern design challenges the costliest creations of the day.

Here, in a price class where average standards have been the rule, is now offered a car so far beyond all expectation that comparisons cease to exist. Seven superb models styled as low priced cars were never styled before and offering such marks of fine car distinction as: full crown one-piece fenders, bullet type lamps and "fish tail" rear deck modeling! New and supremely beautiful bodies by Fisher! And, above all, infinitely finer quality—the result of a host of additional improvements such as AC oil filter, AC air cleaner, coincidental steering and ignition lock, larger 17" steering wheel, gasoline gauge and many, many others!

All this is combined to a supreme degree in the long famous leader of the Chevrolet line—the Coach. It would be a brilliant achievement for any manufacturer merely to design such a splendid car to sell at any reasonably low price. But to sell it at the amazing price of $595 is a feat of history making proportions. This one price reduction alone would suffice to center worldwide attention on Chevrolet. But due to economies of tremendous production plus the vast resources of General Motors, Chevrolet also announces striking price reductions on other models.

For years Chevrolet has led the world in providing Quality at Low Cost. But now with a new and more beautiful car—with a car infinitely finer in quality and greatly lower in price, Chevrolet stands supreme and unchallenged in dollar-for-dollar value!

No matter in what price class you intend to buy or whether you plan to spend more or less than the price of a Chevrolet, come in today and see the most beautiful low priced Coach ever designed. Admire its marvelous style and grace! Mark its many new fine-car features! Learn for yourself by personal inspection why, at its new low price, it is the greatest sensation of America's greatest industry!

Salem Can Boast Three Centuries of History

Few towns in America are blessed with a more richly colored historical background than Salem, Mass., which last summer celebrated the tercentenary of its founding. The old Puritan rule, with all its stern virtues and faults, the days of the mighty merchant fleet that carried the sails of the city's ships to the far seas, and that gloomy chapter known the world over as the "witchcraft delusion," are sufficient to endow the Salem celebration with more than ordinary vividness.

It was in 1626 that Robert Conant and his band of English planters and fishermen started the settlement of Naumkeag. Two years later Capt. John Endicott and his colonists arrived from England. They possessed a charter from the English company that gave them the rights to the land, and with their coming the name of the settlement was changed to Salem, a contraction of Jerusalem.

From the first Salem was of a religious character. The rules of Puritanism were rigidly enforced under the iron rule of Endicott, the first governor, who suppressed the merriment of the young as a misdemeanor, and even went so far as to cut the red cross from the flag of England, the mother country.

Not until 1692 did the wave of witchcraft hysteria that sent 20 victims to ignominious death strike the town, but as early as [illegible] cases of witchcraft had been reported in the colonies. For six months in that eventful year Salem brought the fear of witchcraft to heights theretofore unknown in the new land. Men and women were persecuted, tried on the most flimsy evidence and condemned to die without a chance to defend themselves.

The Revolution found the Puritan zeal busy in new channels. Salem claimed the honor of making the first armed resistance to the British in America. A Salem clipper ship brought the first cargo ever carried in an American bottom direct from Canton to New England, and from this port sailed the first American pleasure yacht to visit Europe.—New York Times.

Fishing in State

W. Ashby Jones, who caught the record tarpon of the year at Caloosahatchee—the fish weighed [illegible] pounds—said at a dinner in Palm Beach:

"An Englishman told me a fish story the other day. It appears that England railroads sell fisherman's tickets at a reduced rate. Well, three fish ticket travelers were held up one Saturday afternoon by an inspector.

"'Here,' he said. 'This won't do. Three fish tickets, and only one rod among the lot of you.'

"'Sh! Not so loud, brother,' answered one of the men. 'The gent on ahead with the rod is Lord [illegible], and we're his [illegible] and [illegible].'"

Find Vast Ore Deposits

New and rich ore deposits have been discovered in the [illegible] Steppe, in the [illegible] and [illegible] districts of Russia. Professor [illegible], vice-director of the geological committee of the Soviet government, reported the find on his return from a [illegible] survey. A vein of ore about four feet thick, containing gold, copper, lead, zinc and silver in extraordinary quantities, was discovered. Rich deposits of coal about thirty-five versts from the Alexandrovsky mines also were discovered by the scientists, which will facilitate the working of the new veins.

The Happy Marriage

Will Rogers, the cowboy humorist, said at a barbecue in San Antonio:

"A friend of mine took me home to dinner the other night. His is indeed a happy marriage. On reaching home he gave his wife a tender kiss and slipped a handsome jade necklace around her neck. Then we sat down to one of the best meals I ever ate in my life."

The cowboy humorist nodded thoughtfully. Then he said:

"A happy marriage is one where the woman looks after the inner man and the man looks after the outer woman."

Welcome Potash Deposits

Potash deposits in the [illegible] district of Solikamsk, government of Perm, are asserted by Soviet chemists to be Russia's deliverance from the Franco-German fertilizer monopoly, controlled through the [illegible] [illegible], hitherto the world's principal source of this important mineral. The Russian deposits, it is stated, are found over an area almost 1,000 square miles in extent, and [illegible] capable of being mined [illegible] as close to the surface as [illegible] feet.

Selecting Jury In Norris Trial

Austin, Tex., Jan. 12 (AP).—Exhaustive examination of prospective veniremen for the murder trial of Dr. J. Frank Norris on their views of self defense, religion and evolution today found five jurors accepted with the prospect a full day's session would be required to complete the panel of 12.

Counsel for the Fort Worth Baptist pastor yesterday grilled those summoned for jury duty on a wide variety of topics, indicating they would rely on the law of "apparent danger" to sustain the contention Dr. Norris shot and killed D. E. Chipps, wealthy Fort Worth lumberman in self defense.

The defense contends that even if Chipps was unarmed when he called at Dr Norris's study to protest attacks by the pastor on Mayor H. C. Meacham, of Fort Worth, or even if the slain man did not intend to take the pastor's life, the killing would have been justified if it appeared from the defendant's standpoint that his own life was in danger.

Each venireman was asked whether he believed in self defense as attorneys for the defense quoted statutes to show that a man does not have to retreat when he is attacked but may defend himself lawfully.

Inviting Crime

"Look here what I bought for that dog of Junior's," Mr. Burton announced, throwing a package on the table.

Mrs. Burton unwrapped it. "Why George!" she exclaimed. "A dog collar, of all things!"

"Yes, and I gave $3.50 for it," Mr. Burton related

"Three dollars and a half!" echoed Mrs. Burton. "What on earth! I don't understand! You've always said you had no use on earth for Junior's dog and you wished somebody would steal it"

"Yes, that's just it," Mr. Burton agreed "With that collar on it some one will be sure to steal it now."—Kansas City Star.

A Heroic Remedy

It was a dark night. Murky clouds obscured the moon in such a way as to make driving dangerous in the uncertain light.

A car was approaching the level crossing, traveling swiftly round the corner which led to the closed gates. At that precise moment an express train thundered through.

Too late, the driver of the car saw his danger. He tried to swerve, but a skid was the only result. With a loud crash he struck the last coach, and the car crumpled up on the track.

Silence for a few minutes. Then a voice:

"Well, it's cured my hiccups, anyway."—and the driver crawled out of the wreck.

Fur Is Featured on Newest Coats

Blending or Contrasting Colors Make Deep Collars and Panels.

The difference between a cloth coat this season and a fur coat is that the cloth coat has a little less fur than the all-fur coat, observes a fashion writer in the Kansas City Star. The long stole collars, the deep shawl collar, cavalier cuffs, and panels of fur on the skirts all bring the quota of fur (and let it also be said the price) of a fur-trimmed cloth coat very close to that of the fur coat. The beauty of the cloth coat trimmed in fur has been brought almost to a state of perfection by the designers. Greens trimmed with rich brown fur, red coats with collars of skunk, fox scarfs on slim wrap-around coats, black caracul on black broadcloth all testify to the perfection of blended furs and fabrics or to the use of contrasting effects.

The coat silhouette is by no means confined to the wrap-around effects; the cape coat is smart. So is the coat that has fullness above the waistline and confined at snugly fitted hips.

The black coat and the red dress is a smart ensemble, so is that which takes contrast into consideration. The green coat, green dress and green hat are perfectly blended in this season's mode, so are the browns and the tans and other fashionable shades.

Natural lynx, pastel and white foxes, wolverine, leopard, ermine, mink and sable are accented. Evening wraps of metallic brocades or velvet also added their quota of furs, some elaborate styles being augmented by rich all-over embroideries and borders of fringe.

Fur wraps are often on dolman lines. Long stoles of sable, wrapped several times around the throat, are interesting additions to several of the costumes.

Coat of Henna Wool With Nutria Collar and Cuffs.

Fringe, often used in sections headed by squares of embroidery, was important, and jeweled pins, bowknots, or ornaments added brilliance to many gowns, posed at hip, shoulder, or at the center front. Flowers, large crushed roses, dotted the generous skirts of tulle and chiffon dance dresses. Lace was used sparingly, in collars, cuffs and in slender draperies to mark skirt slashes. It also is for yokes, chiffon being another material to provide yoke effects, particularly in evening dresses. A happy example of this in pale pink had three yokes posed one after the other in tone-on-tone effect and in battlement cut, being carried out the underarm in a deep square.

The two-piece idea persists, either in actual presentations, or in simulated effects, both blouses and short jackets contributing to this, and evidenced in one or two types as well.

Slender contours, occasionally relieved by the introduction of circular and flared skirt lines, or uneven hems achieved by draped and pointed effects, and plaits provided an animated silhouette. Blouse and bolero themes in extreme moderation represent some of the most interesting models in the collection, always placing accent upon exceedingly youthful themes.

Separate Blouse Is Good

In many of the new costumes the separate blouse is the important half. Made of softer material than the skirt, it falls in graceful lines from shoulder to hips. Usually it has a bloused back, and most often it boasts of loose dolman sleeves. The more elaborate ones are made of metal brocade, printed velvet, or embroidered metallic lace.

Flowered Chiffon

A charming dance or dinner dress is of simple basque lines, with a black lace bodice and a skirt composed of richly colored flowered chiffon, set on a yoke of the same lace.

Tan, Brown, Red Striped Flannel Sport Outfit

Stripes accentuate the beauty of this dress. It is of tan, brown and red striped flannel combined with plain tan flannel, supplying an outfit that will appeal to many women.

Late Fashion Bulletins From Paris and New York

The new geometric influence is assuming increasing importance. Many of the latest Paris creations, not only in sport wear and daytime frocks but in evening gowns by Vionnet, Chanel and other leading French houses, are sharply geometric both in cut and design, according to advices from the Paris bureau of Harper's Bazar. The New York shops this season show widely varied examples of this mode Many of the imaginative beaded motifs used on the new evening gowns are applied in geometric configuration.

The sport ensemble is being featured both in Paris and New York, and may be expected to continue. Paton, Vionnett and Chanel are among the Paris houses emphasizing this most serviceable costume. In fact, the sport movement continues to be an important fashion factor, affecting all phases of the daytime mode.

The top-heavy silhouette, in its many manifestations, is claiming an important place in this season's mode. Martial and Armand achieve this shoulder accent in a sleeveless gown by means of a short cape.

Low-backed evening gowns, recently introduced from leading Paris salons, have become a definite note in the mode, according to Harper's Bazar. All important New York stores are preparing to show low-backed models through the season.

Bouffant skirts for the evening gown are meeting occasional favor. A wide, draped hip-girdle is being sometimes used.

The sport influence that has so strongly dominated daytime apparel is beginning to show itself here and there in evening wear. Several authoritative New York houses are showing evening gowns suggestive of the two-piece sport frock.

A new version of the bolero is rapidly gaining in popularity for the coming season and is considered extremely important. Drecoll sponsors the long bolero which is favored for daytime wear.

Why Europeans Dress Better Than Americans

Why is the average European woman better dressed than the average American woman?

In the opinion of Baron de Meyer, world-famous fashion authority, it is because American women dress for their men while European women dress chiefly for other women.

Writing from Paris for Harper's Bazaar, Baron de Meyer says:

"American women principally dress to please their men. American men, however, never analyze a woman's gown. They are not interested in why a dress is smart if the general appearance is smart.

"The majority of Paris women do not dress to court masculine admiration only, but principally to be appreciated (shall we say envied?) by other well-dressed women. Women being more difficult to satisfy than men, the ladies of Paris are consequently living up to much higher standards. Therefore, they are much better dressed."

Another reason given by De Meyer for the European woman's superior elegance is that while American women "only actively think of new clothes twice a year, European women order few clothes at a time but replenish their wardrobe all the year round. They are, therefore, always up to the mark."

Favor Stole Collars

Many of the cloth coats are provided with collars which give exactly the same appearance as a stole composed of two fox furs. Naturally the silver fox skins are the most choice for this purpose, but cross foxes are becoming tremendously popular owing to their soft blending of brown hues.

Use FREEMAN advertising regularly and conservatively and results will surely follow.

Aztecs No Relatives of American Indians

In the early eighties, two Aztecs, a girl and a boy, were shown in Scotland by a man and woman who exploited them.

As the story of their discovery and kidnapping goes, rumors of the existence of two Aztec children reached the Gulf coast, says a writer in Adventure Magazine. Some adventurers penetrated the hinterland and discovered the two Aztec children, who were posed on the altar of the temple by the priest of the cult as subjects for veneration, possibly—if the traditions of the Aztecs be rightly handed down to us—held until the time for sacrifice to the god came due. The children were kidnapped and, after a bitter struggle with their pursuers, were brought to the coast and smuggled aboard ship, and eventually came into the hands of the couple.

After careful analysis of the physical characteristics of the Aztecs, it may be said they differed from the Amerindians in many ways and were an entirely different race of people from the red man—any nation or people of the Amerindians. The head, the features, eyes, mouth, nose, jaw and chin had no resemblance to any Indian nation or people, or even to the mixed races of the red man, which range from the Slave lake of northern Canada to Patagonia in South America. The outstanding difference was in the hair. The hair of the Aztecs was a long, frizzy shock that stood upright from the forehead.

Immortal Verse

"O Little Town of Bethlehem" was written by Dr. Phillips Brooks when he was rector of a Philadelphia church. It was first sung on Christmas, 1868. The composer of the music was the organist of Doctor Brooks' church, Lewis Redner.

Three Holy Lands

Holy land is the name given by Christians to Palestine. Mohammedans, however, consider Arabia, the birthplace of Mohammed, the Holy land, while Buddhists call India, the country of Sakya Muni, the Holy land.

CURRENT EVENTS OF PLATTEKILL GRANGE

At the first meeting of the Plattekill Grange in the new year on Saturday evening, January 8, the recently elected officers for the year 1927 were fittingly installed by Past Master F. E. Lozier, assisted by Muriel Hedges. The following committees were appointed by Worthy Master C. I. Thompson: Finance committee—Clifford Hotaling, Myron Fowler and Edward Hartney; membership committee—Elsie Smith, Mrs. W. J. Van Wyck, Mrs. Harold Mills, Robert Tremper, Jr., and Bessie Harris; home economic committee—Mrs. F. E. Lozier, Mrs. S. Dransfield, Mrs. William Nabor, Susie Fowler, Mrs. Hallock Harris, Mrs. Nelson Hedges and Mrs. Charles Everett.

Among the plans discussed for the new year was the observance of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization of the Grange to be celebrated in March. Charles Everett, chairman of the play committee, reported that "The Country Minister" had been again successfully presented at Gardiner. It will be presented at the Community Hall in Wallkill on February 2.

The lecturer's hour consisted of two piano solos by Albert Cronk and community singing was enjoyed by all. Several of the good old songs were sung with spirit. A review of the accomplishments of the past year was made by the lecturer, Mrs. C. I. Thompson, and the future discussed. The refreshment committee served "hot dogs" and coffee in abundance.

At the next meeting on January 22 the following refreshment committee will serve: Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Lozier, Elmore Lozier, Mr. and Mrs. William Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mills. Printed programs for the year will soon be ready for distribution.

Famous Botanist

Asa Gray was for many years the leading botanist of the United States. He built up the Herbarium and Botanic garden at Harvard. He started the first summer school because of his belief that summer was the time of the year that botany could best be studied.

MARLBOROUGH.

Marlborough, Jan. 12—The annual meeting and election of officers was held on Tuesday evening by the Marlborough Hose Company. The election was a very spirited one and every member showed keen interest when the ballots were cast. Important business to be conducted during the year was scheduled and the committee on fines expressed that attendance at meetings, drills and fires was an important factor in the makeup of firemen and all who did not comply with the rules, by absenting themselves would be fined. After the meeting in the fire house the company enjoyed sandwiches and coffee in Froemel's restaurant. The men who were chosen to head the organization for the year 1927 are as follows: Harry Dilts, president; Edward Wyms, first vice president; E. G. Fowler, second vice president; Chester Yeaple, recording secretary; Andrew Knapp, financial secretary; Henry Faust, treasurer; Doyley S. Hutchins, captain; Edward McGowan, first assistant; Walter Baxter, second assistant; Edmund Carpenter, Frank Johnston and Louis Steinbach, finance committee.

Fred Crook spent the holidays in New York city.

Mrs Raymond Mackey was ill the past week with the grippe.

Miss Lillian Stevens of Beacon has been visiting at the home of Mrs. H. Mattice.

Mrs. Florence Ogden and her two sons, also Miss Cornelia Young and William Young were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Tuthill in Newburgh on New Year's Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Morrow and their two daughters spent New Year's Day and the week end in Bayside, L. I., at the home of Mrs. Morrow's sister, Mrs. Raymond Godwin.

W. C. T. U. meeting was held Friday afternoon with Mrs. Agnes Burnham as hostess.

A New Year's Eve party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Ennist. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs H S Tuthill and family, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Haviland, Mr. and Mrs. William Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baker.

Helen Kaley of Milton spent Sunday at the home of Glenda Fowler.

John Ryan of Poughkeepsie spent the week end at his home here

Mrs. Helen Bennett, who has been ill for some time with grip, became suddenly worse during the first part of the week and Dr. Thompson of Newburgh was called.

Mrs. Lillian Kniffin is ill at her home.

The hose company was called out on Monday of last week to extinguish a fire in the home of Joseph Dallvechia at West Marlborough and again Friday evening to the home of Michael Dowd of Lattingtown.

Mrs. William Coutant spent a week with her son, the Rev. Frank Coutant, in Central Valley.

Harry Lyons and son, Harry, spent a few days in New York city the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rand have returned home after visiting friends in Schenectady.

W. P. McConnell, Marlborough postmaster, was "high man" Sunday afternoon in a trap shooting contest held in Dutchess county, near Wappingers Falls. Mr. McConnell hit 18 out of 25 of the clay birds, a record he considers low in comparison with marks he has reached in other contests. It was the highest of the afternoon meet however. The contest was staged by the Poughkeepsie Elks. Most of the twenty-five or more men participating were from Poughkeepsie.

Dr. and Mrs. Salsbury came up from Newark on Thursday afternoon so that Mrs. Salsbury might be present at the tea held for her by the Presbyterian Ladies' Aid. Dr. Salsbury returned the same day.

States Sarles is reported quite ill of pneumonia and complications.

Graduated as Dog Nurses

It is the established custom about the country homes in Great Britain to keep a number of dogs, some as house pets, some for hunting, others for no special purpose save to gratify the Englishman's love for dogs. Hence there is a continual demand for veterinary service for the dogs. Recently the animal hospital at Totterridge graduated a class of young women who had completed the training for dog nurses, their plan being to locate in the wealthy country sections and sell their services to dog owners whose pets might be in need of medical attention, and they expect to make a fortune in their profession.—Ohio State Journal.

English Name Hurt Singer

Beatrice Sherrard, a soprano who made her debut last year at the Municipal opera house of Rio de Janeiro in "Aida," said that her English name was such a hindrance in Italy when she went there to study that she was forced to adopt a Latin substitute. "I succeeded in obtaining a hearing before the Italian impresarios only by assuming the name of Beatrice Gherardi," she said. "They scoffed when I was introduced, exclaiming 'What, you are English? They have no talent!'" Miss Sherrard's mother was Brazilian, her father English. She was born in Brazil.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

1926 MEMBERSHIP RECORD IS BROKEN

The American Legion began the most intensive membership campaign in its history immediately following the eighth national convention held in Philadelphia, and within a few weeks state departments had reported to national headquarters in Indianapolis, Ind., that one-third more members had been enrolled for 1927 than had paid advance membership in the same period the year before, which was a record breaker. The total membership for 1926 was greater than it had been since 1922 and 1926 was the first year in which an increase was shown over the preceding year.

Membership contests between states started in lively fashion almost simultaneously with the return of Legionnaires to their homes from Philadelphia. The department of Florida issued a sweeping challenge to every department having a total of 5,000 members for an advance membership race, a silver loving cup to be the prize in each instance. The departments of Illinois, Texas, Wisconsin and California accepted the challenge at once. The terms were fixed on a percentage basis, the advance 1927 membership to be compared with the total membership in each department.

A contest between Minnesota and Michigan for the possession of the "Little Brown Jug," which attracted wide attention in 1926, also was declared early. The jug was presented to Minnesota by national headquarters in the 1926 race. The race is based on the highest total numerical advance members. The idea of the jug came from the annual football game of the universities of those states.

Illinois, New York and Pennsylvania renewed their "battle royal" and again entered a contest, the deciding factor of which is the highest total number of members thirty days prior to the national convention.

In addition to the various races between state departments, there are a number of national membership trophies awarded each year to the winning departments, the terms for the national honors being different in almost every instance. There also are numerous contests between local posts, some of them attracting much attention because of the unique prizes or penalties involved.

Whiskers and an Adam's apple figure in a competitive membership contest between two individual Legionnaires. Six weeks' growth of whiskers will mask the mug of the loser when he attends the state convention of the Legion in Helena, Ark. Will D. O'Shea, post laureate of the Victor Ellig post of Fort Smith, Ark., challenged Lemar L. Moore, the post commander, to an individual member-getting race. Commander Moore snapped up the challenge.

Chester (Pa.) Legion Mourns Death of Terrier

"Nig" is dead. He was just a little black Scotch terrier but veterans of the One Hundred Eleventh infantry, members of Post No. 100, of the American Legion, and a large part of Chester, Pa., mourn his loss. He was a hero of five battles in France.

"Nig" volunteered for service with the A. E. F. during a bombardment one rainy night near the Argonne forest. A little puppy then, he crawled into a barn where Charles Henderson and several buddies of the One Hundred Eleventh infantry, Twenty-eighth division, were seeking shelter. Henderson shared his food and blanket with the dog and when the American advance continued in the morning, the puppy marched with the attacking waves.

Coming through the big American offensives unhurt, the little terrier was smuggled to the United States after the Armistice. For years he was kept at Henderson's home in Chester and endeared himself to the entire neighborhood. He was killed by an automobile.

The Week's Pun

"You are charged with bringing two Hollanders into this country illegally," accused the immigration official. "What have you to say?"

"I get this," objected the culprit. "I don't see how there can be any law against a fellow getting in Dutch."—The American Legion Monthly.

Safer

"Girls were harder to kiss in your day, weren't they, grandpa?"

"Mebbe, mebbe," ventured the old gentleman, "but it wasn't so blame dangerous. The old parlor sofa wouldn't smash into a tree about that time."—American Legion Monthly.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By Mary Graham Bonner

MORE BLIZZARD

"But I'm really too warm," John said. He was as firm as Trotty about not taking the extra wrap after they had upset in the sleigh because of the blizzard. Certainly the party for which they were headed was in the far distance. The boys and girls would wonder what had happened.

They stamped about a little then—just to warm their feet before they got back into the sleigh, was what they said, though both knew that the other was afraid of frozen feet—not because of the after pain, but because of the inconvenience frozen feet might be.

They got back into the sleigh then, covered themselves over with the rug which was heavy with snow right after shaking it out. Then slowly, they made their way back, hopefully to the main road.

Daniel was doing all he could now to help. He seemed to be trying to peer through the snowy darkness to make sure of the path.

They Stamped About a Little.

"Not cold, are you?" John asked.

"Not a bit," Trotty answered. "Are you?"

"Warm as toast," John answered.

Pretty cold toast, Trotty thought to herself, but there was nothing in John's voice to detect anything but comfort. He was too plucky to want to appear plucky. She had, it was true, gloried in having him admire her presence of mind.

She thought of suggesting that they put on their other shoes—which were for the party—but realized that they would get so cold in changing them. They would have to take off their gloves, and the air was too cold for that. It made Trotty shiver just to think of it. So they drove along. At last they came to the road. They could just make it out in the blinding snow.

"Here's where I made the wrong turn before," John said.

Daniel acted as though he felt relieved to be back on the road again. He went along with a sureness as though he was well aware that the difficulties were over. It would be hard now, but the dangers of that terrible place in the center of the woods were past. He had felt trapped there without means of escape. And the more trapped he felt, the more he had reared and stood up to try to push aside the trap.

Yes, Daniel certainly felt relieved now.

On and on for miles until they saw a light in the first house down the road.

"Do you think we'd better stop, John?" Trotty asked. She had wanted to go ahead before, and John had been wiser than she. She, like Daniel, did not want to make a second mistake.

"I don't believe so," John said. "I'd like to get there where the others are tonight. They'll not be coming back until morning with this storm on, and if we don't get there they'll be so worried. Dad thought we started earlier so he will think we're safe with the rest. What about your family? Do you think they'll worry an awful lot?"

"No," said Trotty. "I don't believe so. I was late because mother was out and I had to do quite a lot. The children won't remember that we left so shortly before the storm came on. But the others would worry if we didn't turn up—unless they might think we hadn't started. But they were certain we were coming."

"Yes," John said, "even if we had turned back at first we would have worried them, I'm afraid."

So they passed the house with the light in it, feeling as though they were pushing aside warmth and comfort when it was theirs for the asking. But neither of them said a word about it. Only, just a little after they had passed the house, Trotty turned her head slightly to see if she could still make out the light through the snow.

John turned and looked at her. "Trotty, you're a brick," he said. And once more she glowed with happiness at the praise.

"We'll stop for a bit at the next house," he said a little later. "That's only about three miles down. It will do us all good. Daniel can get dried down, and have his supper and we can have some toast and tea — maybe they'll have jam and a bit of finnan haddie."

But just before this part of the journey was almost over the wind started in once more with a new zest and vim. Wildly, wildly, once more it blew. Up swirled the snow, meeting the falling snow and dancing with it in a frenzy all its own. Was the blizzard really over?

"Well, darter," said Farmer Corntottle to his daughter on her return home from college, "How much do you weigh now?"

"Why", she replied, "I weigh 140 pounds undressed for Gym."

"Who the tarnation is Jim?" came from the old man.

Policeman: "Hey, you, where yuh going with nine buckets of water?"

Boy: "Hush! I'm going to drown a cat."

"The camel can go eight days without water," was the intelligence imparted to a small boy by his governess.

"So would I if mother would let me," rejoined the lad.

Historic Corduroy Road

Old moss-covered cedar logs, rotted with age, except at the hearts, are being removed from their beds in the corduroy road which cuts across the farm of Edgar Campbell in Castleton, Vt., and was a part of the Revolutionary highway leading from Castleton village to the main military highway running across the state of Vermont. The logs are said to have lain undisturbed since the days of 1775, when the Green Mountain boys under Gen. Ethan Allen and the troops of Benedict Arnold met there to march against Ticonderoga. The redcoats of General Burgoyne pitched their tents in Castleton in 1777, and used the old road, which is now being restored by Mr. Campbell for logging purposes.

Real "Smoke Eater"

Minneapolis firemen may soon lose the appellation of "smoke eaters," for they now have a machine that literally "eats" the smoke for them at fires. The device resembles the "steamer" type of fire engine. It has a boiler-like apparatus with a suction fan attached to a huge hose, about fifteen inches in diameter. The hose is run into smoke-filled rooms and the smoke is drawn out. It has proven especially successful in fighting stubborn basement blazes, where there is much smoke but little fire.

Continue Work of Death

Casualties from hidden projectiles that have escaped the search of the crews employed to mop up the shell-strewn regions of France are still common near Lens eight years after the last cannon shot was fired. Children are the most frequent sufferers. The severe regulations against the picking up of metal scraps by any but the persons employed to clean the region of projectiles have reduced the number of such accidents, but they still occur at the rate of about two a week in the coal region.

How Bath Accessories Serve as Aid to Beauty

Self-improvement and beauty culture is gaining such popularity at the present, that it seems opportune to mention the various things which make the bath more stimulating and interesting. There are lovely scented bath salts which give a more elusive odor than toilet water and stimulate the skin. Bath powders have also grown indispensable. Bath sprays and brushes cleanse the pores more thoroughly than wash cloths. Some persons are of the opinion that flesh brushes irritate the skin. But, it really isn't the fault of the brush that this condition results—the pores of the skin become clogged because wash cloths remove only surface impurities, and as time goes on the clogging becomes dry pimples that are exceedingly tender.

If the bath brush is used consistently, this irritation of the skin ceases and the circulation gives the skin a much better texture.

When the skin is inclined to excessive dryness, a bit of olive oil used as a massage will help wonderfully. In this event, soda or borax should not be added to the water for softening purposes but instead bran water, which is easily made by pouring about a pint of cold water over a teacupful of bran. Let the bran mixture stand for half an hour, then pour into the bath water.

Asbury Farm and Home Bureau

The Farm and Home Bureau members in Asbury and vicinity are cooperating in a joint program at their winter meeting scheduled for Tuesday, January 18. The meeting will open at the Katsbaan Hall at 10:30 a. m. with an opening address by Professor J. H. Barron on the legume campaign in Ulster county.

At noon the Home Bureau members will serve a hot lunch to all who attend. Following the luncheon the discussion of the legume campaign will be continued. Professor Barron, who leads the discussion, is a thorough student of legume crops as well as soils and fertilization problems. Farmers interested in improving the standard of their farm crops will surely be pleased and interested in hearing Professor Barron.

That the legume campaign now being conducted in the county will be a big success is assured by the increasing interest members are showing in it. Campaign enrollment cards have been received from sixty-nine to date. Opportunity to enroll will be extended the farmers who attend the Asbury meeting. In a recent campaign in Monroe county in one season 1,600 acres of alfalfa were planted by farmers participating. Others increased their acreage of soy beans, sweet clover, oats, peas and barley. In these days of expensive purchased feeds farmers must look to their own resources to cut out their big expense. Legumes offer the quickest and surest relief.

The Solvay-limed farm is the successful farm!

The farmer spreading Solvay Pulverized Limestone is bound to be successful because he is sure of sweet soil, productive soil. That means bumper crops—large profits.

Spread Solvay this year—sweeten sour soil, release plant food and you'll have fertile, productive fields.

Solvay gives you more, dollar for dollar, than any other lime you can buy. High test, furnace dried, finely ground, safe to handle—will not burn. In easy to handle 100-lb. bags and in bulk.

Here's Speedy Relief From Bunions and Soft Corns

Dedrick's Drug Store Says Emerald Oil Must Give Complete Satisfaction or Money Cheerfully Refunded.

Get a two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) today. Every well stocked drug store has this, with the distinct understanding that your money will be cheerfully returned if it does not reduce the inflammation, soreness, and pain much quicker than any remedy you ever used.

Your bunions may be so swollen and inflamed that you think you can't go another step. Your shoes may feel as if they are cutting right into the flesh. You feel sick all over with the pain and torture and pray for quick relief. What's to be done?

Two or three applications of Moone's Emerald Oil and in fifteen minutes the pain and soreness disappears. A few more applications at regular intervals and the swelling reduces.

And as for Soft Corns a few applications each night at bed time and they just seem to shrivel right up and scale off.

No matter how discouraged you have been with pads, shields, or other applications if you have not tried Emerald Oil then you have something to learn.

It's a wonderful formula—this combination of essential oils with camphor and other antiseptics so marvelous that thousands of bottles are sold annually for reducing varicose or swollen veins.

Dedrick's Drug Store and every good druggist guarantees Moone's Emerald Oil to end your foot troubles or money back.

Farm and Home Bureau Meetings

Arrangements have been completed by the Farm and Home Bureau managers through cooperation of community committee members to hold winter meetings in several communities in the near future.

The first meeting is scheduled for Asbury at the Katsbaan Church Hall on Tuesday, January 18, at 10:30 a. m. Professor J. H. Barron of Cornell has been engaged as the Farm Bureau speaker. His topic will be "The Legume Campaign in Ulster County." Home Bureau members will serve a hot lunch at noon time, and a part of the program of the afternoon session will be given to discussion of Home Bureau affairs. On January 19 a similar program will be given at New Paltz with Professors Barron and "Bob" Adams as speakers. Professor Adams' talk will be particularly interesting to the women as he emphasizes the use of vegetables in the diet. On January 20, Gardiner members will meet at the I. O. O. F. Hall to hear Professors Barron and Adams. On January 21 the program will be given at the New Community Hall in Modena.

Meetings for Flatbush, Wallkill, Shawangunk, and Stone Ridge will follow during the week of January 24. Programs for each meeting will be announced later.

Winter meetings have come to be a very important part of the Farm and Home Bureau program. They serve to bring to the members, speakers of reputation and authority on various agricultural problems. Members have a direct contact with extension speakers from the State College and can get concrete and reliable information on their farm problems. Members and friends are cordially invited to attend as many meetings as they desire.

FARM POULTRY

RIGHT CARE AND FEED FOR EGGS

In the summer the farm hen may forage for a supply of animal feed and garner all the available bugs, worms, and green feed needed to replenish worn-out body tissue and to produce an abundant quantity of eggs. But winter has come now and the bugs are gone. So has the green feed on many farms and the hen must be fed if she is expected to produce eggs in profitable quantities.

"Eggs are high-priced in the winter because so few farm hens are laying at this season," says Dr. B. F. Kaupp, head of the poultry department at South Carolina State college. "The two usual reasons for low egg production are found in the poor producing power of the hen and also because she may not have the proper food and care. If the hen comes from a high producing strain and is not laying as she should, it is possible that she may not have a comfortable house, or that she is not free of parasites, and does not have the right kind of feed and other care."

Doctor Kaupp states that eggs are low in price during the spring months because everybody's hens are laying then. Eggs always go down in the spring and the farmers' organizations should store eggs at that season. In the winter eggs go up to 75 cents and $1 per dozen because the hens are not laying. Then the storage houses bring out the cheap spring eggs to sell at a good profit.

The poultry department has prepared extension circulars 155, 156 and 158 which tell how to put the farm flock on a paying basis. These bulletins are free and will tell how to cull and feed the birds for winter eggs. It should be remembered, states Doctor Kaupp, that laying hens must have mash before them at all times. The mash must contain crushed grains, minerals, fish or meat meal, or the surplus milk of the farm. Tender, green feed is also needed each day. Water should be constantly before the birds and the grain feed given them twice each day.

Most Poultry Diseases Can Easily Be Conquered

A broom, shovel, scraper and a spray pump with some crude oil or other good spray material will conquer most poultry diseases. The University of Nebraska lists these remedies as the best for most poultry diseases. Unfortunately, they also require energy and initiative on the part of the flock owner. It is much easier to put pills or dope in the drinking water after the hens are sick than it is to scald the fountains and clean up the house.

Of course, poultry yields to treatment the same as other live stock but why allow sickness to gain a foothold in the first place? Furthermore, the fellow who pins too much faith on bright-colored, strong-smelling medicines usually forgets to remove the cause of the trouble. A little study usually proves it to be over-crowding, poor ventilation, filth and vermin. Disease will cure the overcrowding, but it is an expensive method. Just plain prevention is all most poultry raisers need to avoid losses.

Profits Increased From Hens by Use of Lights

Tests at the Nebraska experiment station last winter on two pens of 90 leghorns each showed that electric lights increased the income from 90 hens $25.44. The hens in both lots were as near alike as possible and both groups were kept in ordinary houses.

Both pens received exactly the same care except that one was lighted at 5 o'clock each morning and the other was not. Pullets well matured and ready to lay by November 1 respond to lights all winter. Yearling hens that have molted late should not be forced before January 1. Morning light proved more practical from the standpoint of feed and management. Scratch feed was scattered in the litter at night so the hens could go to work in the morning as soon as an alarm turned on the lights.

Breeding Pens

Although the average poultry man cannot afford to trapnest his hens, he can greatly improve his flock by making a special breeding pen of his best male bird and a few choice hens or pullets. In choosing these breeders both egg producing and standard qualities should be kept in mind. By toe-marking or banding chicks hatched from this pen it will be found that the chicks hatched from the eggs from this pen will be superior to those from the general flock.

Dry Mash for Hens

The amount of dry mash that the hens eat is usually determined by the amount of scratch feed given to the flock. Satisfactory results are obtained by feeding twice as much scratch feed as mash during the winter months, the ratio being reversed during the summer and spring months. It is a good plan to give the heaviest feed late in the afternoon. Succulent feeds like alfalfa, clover, sprouted oats, etc., are rich in vitamines, and have an excellent effect on the digestive system.

State Charities Aid Committee

The quarterly meeting of the Ulster County Committee of the State Charities Aid Association was held at the county building January 6, at 2:30 p. m. The usual business was transacted, which consisted of the reports of the standing committees, among which was the report of the children's committee, Mrs. Searing, chairman. In Mrs. Searing's absence, the agent summed up the activities of the committee. The outstanding feature of this committee was the increase in members, Mrs. Joseph M. Fowler and Mrs. Gerard W. Betz being the new members.

A report of the city and county charitable institutions, Mrs. Thomas Hickey, chairman, was received.

There was read to the committee an acknowledgement of the resolution offered by the Ulster County Committee of the State Charities Aid Association on the death of Miss Louisa Lee Schuyler, honorary president.

The regular quarterly report of the agent was given. In the agent's report gratitude to the Junior League for their share in the children's Christmas was publicly acknowledged, also to Admiral Francis J. Higginson for the $10 which he gave to be distributed among the children in the boarding home.

A discussion as to delegates to the annual luncheon to be held at the Ritz Carlton, January 15, was held. Of the Ulster county committee there will be present at this luncheon Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Fessenden, Mrs. Francis J. Higginson, Miss Florence Cordts and guest, and the children's agent.

MARY H. HALDANE,
Chairman Publicity Committee.

Flying-Machine Idea Older Than Balloon

Contrary to popular belief, the principle of the flying machine was introduced long before the balloon came into notice. But the lighter-than-air carriers were for a long period considered the only possible method of air travel, and for that reason have become the symbol of pioneer aeronautics.

Without even considering Ovid's mythological tale of the mechanical flying bird, Aulus Gellius, in his "Attic Nights" writes of a wooden dove invented by the Greek mathematician, Archytas of Tarentus, in the year 400 B. C. The same Archytas is said also to have invented a navigable kite.

There is then a long gap in "aeronautics" until the Fifteenth century, when Leonardo Da Vinci, famous as the painter of "Mona Lisa," is reputed to have in about the year 1480 outlined the plan of a flying machine. Nothing has ever been found of the draft.

Two hundred years later one Borelli presented a pair of mechanical wings to a wondering public, while in the same period Besnier, a French locksmith, built a pair of oscillating wings with which he is reputed to have traveled short distances.

Perhaps the most definite and practical plan for an airplane left to posterity, prior to the modern conceptions of Maxim, Langley, the Wrights and others, is that conceived by Swedenborg, the extraordinary universal genius of the Eighteenth century. His carefully worked out draft was planned about 1720 and is now in the archives of the government of Sweden. Swedenborg also left plans, or working drafts, of a submarine, air-gun, universal musical instrument, a mechanical carriage, etc.

Bedtime Story

Once there was a statesman who decided that a new era had come.

"Illiteracy has vanished from the land," he said. "The people are now enlightened. Bunkum is as obsolete as the 30-cent dinner. Henceforth I shall tell them only the truth."

So, when he came up for re-election, he made no extravagant promises. He told them that business was bad and he didn't know how to make it any better.

He told them that he had voted for laws that he now believed were rotten. He told them that taxes would have to be raised and that no millenium was in sight.

But he added that he would do all that a normally intelligent person could do to improve conditions.

His opponent got the biggest plurality in history.—Kansas City Star.

Another U. S. A.

Speaking of United South Africa, I addressed a letter once to Richmond, Va., U. S. A. The letter, with a Richmond, Natal, postmark, was returned indorsed: "Address unknown." On complaining to the post office I was indignantly informed that U. S. A. stood for United South Africa, and that the United States of North America should be U. S. O. N. A. American friends, please accept this, the only limitation. Of course, it may be perfectly all right when mail sorters get to know it, but I am afraid if I mailed a letter to Savannah, Georgia, U. S. O. N. A., it would be put in the bag for Asia Minor, or wherever the original Georgia may be.—From Spalding's "Reminiscences."

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

New York—Al. Smith, Jimmy Walker and George Olvany are all wearing black bowlers, and a master tailor, coming from London, says England is giving up the high hat in favor of the type of grey fedoras the New York Democrats have discarded.

London—Americans are feeling more and more at home. Matches are given away now to purchasers of smokes. And fellows selling hot dogs at sporting events are also to handle ice cream in summer.

Stockholm—Telephone service to the United States is to be arranged within a month.

New York—The biggest bank in the world is now in this town. Deposits of the National City Bank exceed a billion dollars.

London—A non-inflammable film for movies is declared to be successful after a test in a theatre. The inventor has been working on it for 14 years.

Sydney, N. S. W.—Papuan wives in the mountain gold country have to carry packs weighing as much as 130 pounds. Their husbands make them do it.

Chicago—Ira C. Copley, who is worth $20,000,000, hopes for happy days in a yacht of that name which he is having built at Kiel at a cost of $2,000,000. He has sold out his public utility interests and is going to forget politics. He was formerly a congressman and gave $25,000 to Frank Smith's campaign fund.

New York—Arturo Toscanini, Italian conductor, a disciple of the strenuous life of Mussolini, is ill with bronchitis. Two concerts scheduled for this week have been cancelled. At 59 he has been working much harder than in his younger days and friends fear he has overtaxed his strength.

San Francisco—Rosamond Pinchot is studying English and psychology at the University of California, intending to complete the education interrupted when she took the part of the nun in "The Miracle."

WEST PARK.

West Park, Jan. 12. — George Green, caretaker of the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul McEwen, has been ill lately but is now improving.

Local men are busy filling the ice houses with winter fruit for summer use.

Many residents are planning to go to Kingston on Tuesday evening to attend the Bishop's Crusade services in the Holy Cross Church.

Herbert Gindrat expects to leave for Schenectady on Monday.

Mrs. Huser and Mrs. William Schickle of Poughkeepsie will occupy the Ginrat home for some time.

Miss Helen Smith of Richmond, Va., spent Friday at the Hasbrouck home and the rectory. Miss Smith expects to sail for Italy on Wednesday. She will join Mrs. Mabel Schantz and Miss Gretchen Schickle in that country.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul McEwen, who spend their summers in this place, will leave for New York on Wednesday to tour the world.

Gold-Plated Pagoda

The native of Burma is rated much higher than that of India in the matter of intelligence and the country is much pleasanter and more picturesque. There are many beautiful castles surrounded by gorgeous flower gardens and imposing pagodas. The largest pagoda in all Burma, known as the Swaddigondge, is located at Rangoon and is gold-plated from top to bottom, with a flag of diamonds and rubies at the top. It is said to have cost $5,000,000 and is a beautiful temple, where all Burmese can go to worship. It covers between 10 and 15 acres at the bottom.

BRIDGE TRIBUTE TO SKILL OF ENGINEER

Structure Crossing Firth of Forth a Marvel.

The huge bridge which spans the firth of Forth in Scotland, and known as the Forth bridge, is a marvel of engineering skill.

This wonderful bridge was started in 1882, but was not completed until 1889. Erected to obviate the detour around the head of the firth, its total length is over 8,000 feet. It crosses the firth at Queensferry, where the channel is comparatively narrow, and where stands in mid-channel the Isle of Inchgarvie.

The amount of steel used in its structure is somewhat amazing—51,000 tons—woven into this giant bridge, which is capable of holding aloft two railway tracks so firmly that express trains are able to pass over at a speed of 60 to 70 miles an hour. The manner in which the workmen dug out the bed of the estuary until they reached the solid rock on which they built the masonry, working all the time under compressed air conditions, is amazing and great credit is due to the engineers who had the work in hand, Sir John Fowler and Sir Benjamin Baker. This bridge is one of the most famous of the "Cantilever" type, sometimes known as a bracket bridge, so called because each end of a span is built out like a bracket, braced on a firm foundation, and a center portion is then riveted to the ends, similar to a shelf supported on wall brackets.

As with suspension bridges, cantilever bridges can be built in long spans so these types are chosen where many supports would be a hindrance to navigation. Each year there is 145 acres of surface to be painted, so one can readily conceive the extent of this bridge.

The two main spans are 1,710 feet long and formed of two cantilevers, each 680 feet long, united by a girder 350 feet in span. Supporting the cantilevers are steel towers 361 feet high. It will not be surprising that the cost of erecting this bridge amounted to nearly $10,000,000, for from 4,000 to 5,000 men were employed for seven years before the Forth bridge was opened for traffic.

Praises Chinese Music

Music at the Confucian birthday anniversary fete is a real masterpiece despite the fact that to most foreigners Chinese music is ear torturing. This is the opinion of an American musician in Peking, who, although having not had the opportunity to attend the fete itself, to which no foreigner is admitted, was privileged to witness the rehearsal. "Here was real music," he relates in the New York Evening Post, "music of symphonic or operatic quality. Composers are searching the world over, from the Kongo jungles to Iceland, for themes from folk songs, and here is a magnificent thing almost ready made for western ears."

"Sent to Coventry"

This phrase, which is in quite general use in English schools, means to ignore a person absolutely. The generally accepted explanation is that the citizens of Coventry objected at one time to the soldiers sent to the town. They treated them with silent contempt, and for a soldier to be ordered to the town meant little less than a mild excommunication.

Russia Needs Many Horses

Thirty-five million horses are not enough for the Russians and they are making commercial arrangements with neighboring states for the import of more animals. In Russia are already one-third the horses in the world. Lithuania and East Prussia are two horse breeding centers from which delegations recently have gone to Moscow to work out plans for sending horses into the Soviet state, to meet the great demand of the agricultural sections. Tractors are being introduced as rapidly as possible. Mostly they come from the United States, but Russia is building some.

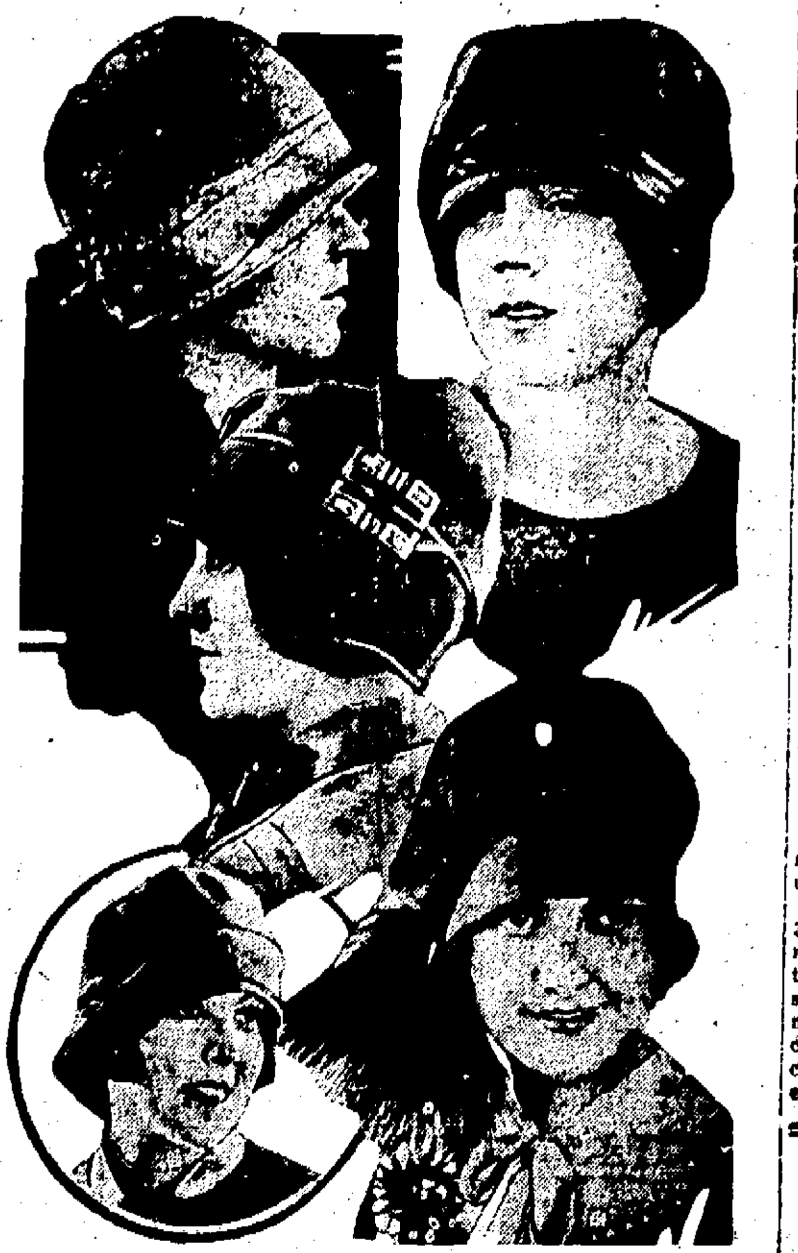
THE BERET AND NEW EARLAP TYPE REGISTER AS SMART HEADWEAR



VERY considerate is it of our milliners this winter to make way for our fur collars by creating hats which have little or no brim. Of course with brims conspicuous by their absence, responsibility for the conveying of the style message devolves to a great extent upon the crowns of our hats.

There is the little hat shown first in this group; modishness is written all over it, yet it is mostly all crown save just a suggestion of a cunning little brim forming an earlap effect at the back. This clever model is styled of arctic blue antelope felt, edged with grosgrain ribbon of self tone. There is an ombre lacquered quill half encircling it.

By the way, the latest millinery sensation is the earlap hat. A fetching version of this new type is portrayed in the center of this picture. For this the designer draped and slashed and folded into place a cameo-brown felt hood, binding it with grosgrain ribbon of self shade, adding a gold buckle fastening.

In the stylish beret shown to the right at the top again is demonstrated the idea of hats trending mostly to crown these days. The beret, of which this is an arresting exponent, is proving immensely popular. This one is of totem-orange felt with band effect of flat lizardite in tones of black and red. Further banding is accomplished with black grosgrain ribbon.

A band of felt arranged as a sash about the crown line of a soft draped felt hood describes the stunning shape to the left below.

Again the beret attains distinction in the model shown last in this group. The broad band of black belting ribbon together with two brushes of black burnt peacock impart the finishing touch.

On Fashions

A Resume of Winter Fashions Reveals the Dominance of Gray, the Preference for Black with Gray Fur for Day Wear, Spangles for Evening, and the Approval of All White, and All Black.

Paris.—In thinking over the things that have seemed most impressive, or significant, after a sojourn of over two months in Paris, months crowded with a jumble of things, beginning and ending in clothes, it seems that gray should be listed first. It is the new note and therefore has added significance at this season. Then, too, one must not forget that navy is also a spring color and it was immensely fashionable here last spring—the best argument in the world for believing it will be worn in America this spring. As one style authority put it, "Gray will replace beige and bois de rose, navy will take the place of red or green."

A White Crepe [illegible] Dance Frock Has an Unusual Girdle Treatment, the Wide Girdle Crossing the Front, and Dropping in Unique Fashion at the Sides. White and Crystal Beads Outlined in Silver Make an Effective Decoration at the Front.

There is a new movement too in millinery. Crowns are not so high, but they have more of a tendency to become draped on beret lines. They are, however, mounted on a tightly-fitted coronet, the line curving over the brow and fitting the forehead smoothly. Of course, all hats do not do this, but a sufficient number of them do to warrant mention of the movement.

There is also a decided tendency toward darker stockings, to gloves that match, and to handbags that carry out either the coloring of gloves, hat and stockings, or of kid of which the shoes are made. Crystal is the newest trimming for bags, and the novelty in jewelry.

For evening, the general tone of the smartest dance floors is frosty, sparkling white. The spangled gown is supreme. It is not always white; a brilliant saphire is one choice, while dresses in other colors are often decorated with spangled godets or bands. All black is still elegant for evening, but all black, excepting with light furs or some introduction of color, is not of prime importance for day wear. These are a few of the more arresting high lights in reviewing the winter in Paris.

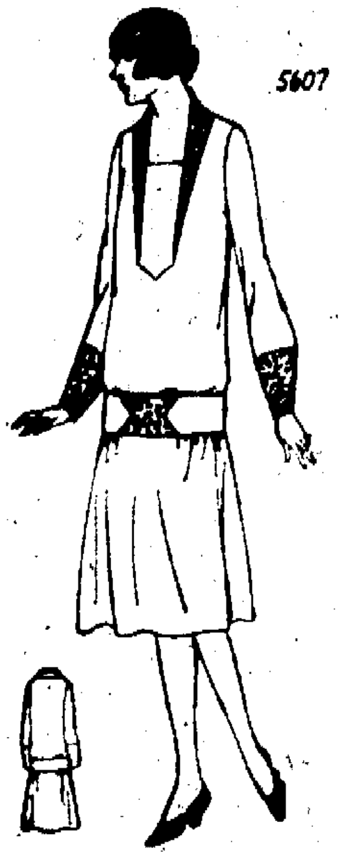
OUR DAILY PATTERN.



A New and Stylish Model.

5607. The blouse silhouette and a new sleeve is here attractively featured.

The pattern is cut in six sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. To make the dress as portrayed in the large view for a 38-inch size will require 3⅝ yards of 40-inch material, together with ½ yard of contrasting material for facings on collar, front portion of belt, and lower portion of sleeves. The width at the lower edge of the skirt is 1¼ yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any person on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Fashion Book Notice.

Send 15c in coin or stamps to The Freeman for our up-to-date Fall and Winter 1926 Book of Fashions, showing color plates, and containing 500 designs of ladies', misses' and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various simple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

Straight Silhouette Wins Favor in Paris

The formal season in Paris has emphasized the complete domination of the straight silhouette. Coats, frocks and evening robes are all smartest when the line is uninterrupted from shoulder to hem. A slight blousing effect, all around if you wish, but preferably confined to the back, has also earned a definite niche in winter fashions. Both bodies and skirt should be fairly loose save at the hipline, where molded effect is permissible. Straight, full, easy-fitting and of course short, with a slight blousing to indicate a waistline which is almost normal—that is the final Paris prescription for the winter silhouette.

Frock of Chinese Inspiration

A smart frock, obviously inspired by the Chinese costume, is of black satin and red crepe de chine. The satin is used for the plaid skirt and for a coat edged with gold braid. Red crepe de chine forms the underblouse which is embroidered in Chinese designs in gay colors.

Midwinter Mode Shows Light Furs, Dark Coats

And now women of fashion have something new to think about—light, fluffy fur on the dark cloth coat. Fashion is tending just that way. A jungle green suede with red fox, a wine-red cloth with natural lynx, a black broadcloth with a spectacular trimming of badger, so the story of ultra-smart coats continues in endless fascinating contrasts of fur and cloth. Not content to simply encircle the neck, the fur keeps on traveling down the front in tuxedo revers to the very limit of the hemline. The newest novelty of all is the huge fur pocket, positioned to attract attention at first glance.

Favored Winter Modes in Women's Footwear

The following outstanding features will mark this winter's fashions in women's shoes, according to Harper's Bazar. Cabled dispatches from the magazine's Paris bureau confirm the new trends:

The vogue of boa and other serpent skins is about over in Paris.

Lizard and alligator will be extensively used, but owing to a threatened shortage of these skins, will be employed more for trimming than for entire shoes.

Many of the walking and semi-sport shoes will be trimmed with lizard. It will also be seen on smart patent leather afternoon models, either sandals or modified pumps. It will be used both in matching and contrasting colors.

In spite of the protest against the pump, on the score that it widens the foot, it is still being worn by many of the world's smartest women.

Brown patent leather will be used with semi-sport costumes.

Dull enamel is being shown in Paris in combination with colored kid or patent leather.

For sports, travel and country wear, the oxford or the strapped model has become well established. Its heels are growing broader and lower. tones in calf or colored kid are favorites, with neutral shades preference. Yellowish shades are good.

For afternoon shoes, sandal will continue popular with several materials appearing. Among these ottoman silk and a new heavy

Correct materials for evening include satin brocades of all both all silk and silk and metal, gilded and silvered leathers these last are now smarter in ming than in entire shoes.

Jewel-studded heels will be used only for very special occasions. same will hold true for the new orate "foot jewelry" which is a of the winter's footwear.

"The evening shoe situation is Every smart woman will have types of evening shoe, the very and the very elaborate, and the chic of the thing will lie in cho the right occasion for each type."

Whose hands touched it before yours?

Germs, as well as dirt, removed from hands by this purifying toilet and bath soap

"IF a germ could talk, it would tell you that nothing pleases him more than to get a free ride from someone's soiled hands to some other person's mouth," says the United States Public Health Service Broadcast, No. 96.

Think of the many times each day your hands touch things that others may have left germ-laden.

Things you can't help but touch. Money, car-straps, door-knobs, banisters, packages, public telephones—all these, and many more, may transmit germs to the hands.

That's why health authorities say hands are among the greatest carriers of sickness. See below, list of 27 germ diseases hands may spread.

You wash your hands, of course. But "even if your hands look clean, they may be covered with germs," says the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

For greater safety—wash hands at all times with the purifying toilet soap that removes germs, as well as dirt.

Benefits the skin, too

There isn't a better toilet soap made than Lifebuoy. Millions have discovered this for themselves. They prefer it for hands, for bath, for shampoo, for every toilet purpose.

They revel in its abundant, penetrating lather that removes dirt in a twinkling, that makes the skin delightfully soft and smooth, that destroys all perspiration odors instantly—and keeps them away all day.

And best of all, Lifebuoy helps safeguard health. Its antiseptic lather removes germs, as well as dirt.

Greater protection—its hygienic scent tells you why

Lifebuoy is so different from other toilet and bath soaps that even its scent is different.

Not a perfume, but a clean, pleasantly hygienic scent which proves Lifebuoy gives greater protection. Even before you've finished your first cake, you'll learn to love this cleanest of all soap scents, which quickly evaporates after rinsing.

Without its antiseptic, Lifebuoy would still be a wonderful toilet soap—but it wouldn't give you the same measure of protection.

Like millions of others, once you form the Lifebuoy habit, you'll wonder how any other soap ever satisfied you.

Added safety—free

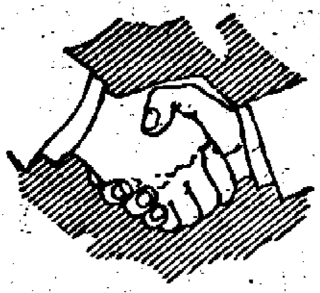
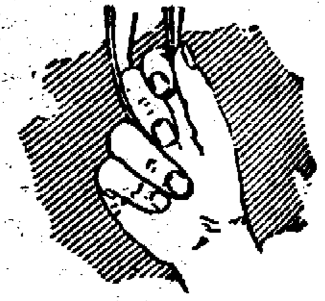
You wash and bathe with some soap anyway. So why not use Lifebuoy, which costs no more—probably less—than the soap you are now using? The protection it gives you is actually free!

You can get Lifebuoy wherever soap is sold. You will know it by the red box and the cake—orange-red, the color of its pure palm-fruit oils.



By shaking hands countless germs may be spread

Germs may be lurking on the public telephone you use



Other hands may have left YOUR car-strap germ-laden

For Greater Safety
MILLIONS
now turning to Lifebuoy

Lifebuoy has long been used by millions upon millions of people the world over—and now, as never before, new millions are changing to this famous toilet soap that removes germs, as well as dirt.

Mrs. Della Davis entertained at her home for supper Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Barley and Mr. and Mrs. Calvin B. Davis.

Joseph Barley has employment at H. L. Devoe's in Accord.

Mrs. Percy Barley and daughter, Melvina, of Accord spent the past Friday with Mrs. Arthur Davis.

Beulah Hornbeck spent Saturday afternoon with her friend, Minnie Hornbeck.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin B. Davis have returned to their home at Leibhardt.

Mrs. Arthur Davis spent Wednesday with her sister, Mrs. Simon Hornbeck.

The Simple Life in India

In India they have 50 different religions and every religion has its own meat. The Mohammedan will not eat pork, the Hindu will not eat beef, the Narpalies will eat neither beef or pork, but eat fish and chicken instead. They take a piece of cloth five yards long, and that is the limit of their clothes. The cloth is wound around the lower part of the body, and some who have a few rupees wear a shirt. They live in bamboo huts. They split bamboo and lace it crosswise, and sometimes they put a coat of mud over the outside. The roof is made of banana leaves and is a foot thick.

Life is a challenge and its laws
Are rigid ones and stern;
The splendid joy of real applause
Each man must nobly earn.
It makes us win its jewels rare,
But gives us paste, if we're unfair.

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS

When one has a small family and a recipe makes too much to consume before spoiling, this dozen doughnut recipe will be welcome:

Doughnuts.—Cream two tablespoonfuls of shortening with one-half cupful of sugar, add one beaten egg, three cupfuls of flour sifted with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half cupful of milk. Set out to chill, then roll one-half inch thick and cut with a large cutter.

Banana and Cheese.—Cut peeled bananas into two-inch lengths, roll in beaten egg, then in grated cheese and fry in deep hot fat. These are delicious served with broiled bacon or baked ham.

Mock Mince Pie.—Take one cupful of bread crumbs, one cupful of raisins, one cupful of sugar, one cupful of cranberries cut into halves, one saltspoonful each of cinnamon, cloves, allspice and nutmeg, one cupful of hot water, one-half cupful of vinegar, and one tablespoonful of butter. Turn into a tin lined with flaky crust and bake with a top crust.

Pumpkin Pie.—Beat two eggs, add one-half cupful of sugar, a cupful of thick, well browned pumpkin, a pint of rich milk, one-half teaspoonful each of salt and ginger, a few drops of lemon extract and a dash of nutmeg, cinnamon and cloves. Bake in a moderate oven an hour.

Indian Pudding.—Measure two quarts of milk, two-thirds of a cupful of corn meal, one cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, one cupful of raisins, one cupful of finely chopped suet, nutmeg, cinnamon and two tablespoonfuls of flour. Scald one quart of the milk, add the corn meal mixed with a little cold milk and cook until smooth. Add the rest of the ingredients, beating the egg and pour into a deep earthenware bowl. Sprinkle the top with the flour; the suet will come to the top and form a beautiful brown crust when it is baked. Stir several times during the first hour of cooking.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA
Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.
Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.
Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Cornell Hose Co. Holds Banquet

Mayor Dempsey, Fire Commissioners and Others Give Talks at Feast Following Annual Meeting—Officers Elected.

The annual meeting and election of officers was held on Tuesday night by Cornell Hose Company, No. 2, in the rooms on Abeel street. A large number of members attended and showed much interest in the schedule of events planned for the year. After the meeting a banquet was held in the dining hall and a delicious menu was served. Mayor Dempsey was one of the invited guests and addressed the members on a subject of vital importance to all firemen. President Louis Kolts of the fire board, Commissioner P. J. Beichert and Deputy Chief Frederick M. Leverich were also among those at the guests' table.

The men chosen to head the organization for 1927 were: Mark Bacharach, president; Henry W. Munch, vice president; A. J. Murphy, Sr., recording secretary; Louis Schwartz, financial secretary and treasurer, William Leonard, foreman; George Guldy, first assistant, Edward T. Burns, second assistant, John Arnold, delegate to Kingston Fire Fund Association, George P. Bowers, delegate to the Hudson Valley Firemen's Association; Martin Haegele, alternate, Joseph Mitchell, Fred Heybruck, Florian Baker, Edward Wetterhahn and Martin Haegele, delegates to the Volunteer Firemen's Association, William Smith, supervisor. The trustees chosen were, Joseph Epstein for one year; Philip Feeney for two years, James Costello for three years.

After the meeting the firemen marched to the dining hall while the orchestra composed of Paul Zucca, John Erne and Gus Lang played a popular air. Joseph Epstein, toastmaster, then gave a little talk to the gathering and explained the program for the evening.

Better Protection, Says Mayor.

He introduced Mayor Edgar J. Dempsey who told of the new water system with eight inch mains and new hydrants which were to be installed in this city to insure greater fire protection, also of the auxiliary reservoir at Cherry Hill, which will insure a greater supply of water.

Commissioner Kolts asked the men for cooperation in cases of fire and declared that the hydrants must be kept from freezing in this weather and that it would be a good idea for all firemen to take notice of the hydrants to see whether or not they are in good condition.

Commissioner Beichert gave a brief history of the fire fighters of Kingston and the methods used in quenching the flames. He said that this city is to have a new fire truck with aerial equipment which he considered one of the greatest assets to insure public safety.

Deputy Chief Leverich next made a plea for men to help at fires which are of a threatening nature and urged all volunteers to turn out at the second alarm.

The three speakers called attention to the big fire in Newburgh and expressed their sympathy for the stricken people of the disaster zone. They also thanked the fire company for the invitation extended them to attend the function and wished Cornell Hose Coompany continued years of success.

Members Made Addresses.

Toastmaster Joseph Epstein next introduced members of Cornell Hose Company to address the banqueters. Secretary Andrew J. Murphy, Sr., gave a short talk on the activities of Cornell Hose during his affiliation with the organization. John Arnold, the oldest fireman in Kingston, next gave a speech that interested all present. Mr. Arnold joined the fire fighting brigade in 1870 and is still as active as the youngest member of any fire company. President Mark Bacharach and former President Jacob Schlip also addressed the fire boys.

Company Talent Entertains.

The diners were also entertained with selections from the members of the company. Secretary Andrew J. Murphy, Sr., rendered a song of the days gone by which was heartily received by all. Martin Dunn and Thomas Daley pleased the gathering with their rendition of old Irish airs. William Smith sang a ballad and a song composed by himself which all appreciated. William De Koskie rendered a tenor solo and all joined in the chorus. Joseph Mitchell delighted the banqueters with the recitations of poems such as Shakespeare never wrote and was called upon many times for repetitions. William Martin, Frederick Albright and James Gallagher sang a selection and were called for an encore due to the harmony produced. Dancers were also called upon to entertain and Edward Burns, Joseph Dalton and Joseph Epstein furnished amusement in this phase of the program. Al Vogel was the outstanding figure as far as dancing was concerned and splendidly, after much persuasion, did the famous Charleston.

Respect to Mayor Block.

One minute of silence was observed in respect to the memory of Mayor Morris Block, who was an ardent member of Cornell Hose Company, and all present stood with bowed heads while the large clock ticked away the seconds of that solemn space of time.

A vote of thanks was given Rose-Gorman-Rose and the Kaplan Furniture Company, downtown, for the cigars donated to the company.

The menu was as follows: Meat, cheese and lettuce sandwiches; celery hearts, stuffed olives, cake, ice cream, soda and F. & D., Peter Schuyler and B. & S. cigars.

Pancake Supper.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Fair Street Reformed Church will hold a pancake supper January 24, from 5.30 to 7:30 o'clock, in the lecture room of the church. Pancakes and sausage, with butter and maple syrup, coffee and apple pie will be served.

Kodiak Bear Weighs Ton

The Kodiak brown bear attains the greatest weight of all bruins, often weighing almost a ton, according to the Dearborn Independent.

LAST NIGHT on THE RADIO

The less said about radio reception last night the less the fans will be reminded of disappointments. Conditions were just promising enough to cause one to expect improvement the next minute, but the improvement never came. Distant stations were weak and "the big three", WGY, WJZ and WEAF, faded, gurgled, groaned and grunted, while the bloopers added to the unpleasantness. At 6:30 WGY was able to spread itself over half of the dial.

Afternoon reception was clear and fairly strong.

ALLIGERVILLE.

Alligerville, Jan. 12.—Work in filling the creamery ice house at Kyserike began Monday morning. The ice is taken from the Latham creek.

The Ladies' Aid Society was very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Lemuel Atkins Wednesday afternoon.

There was a good attendance at the dance Saturday evening. A large sleigh load from Stone Ridge and several from Walden were present.

The Community Improvement Society met Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. John Smith. On account of the cold weather the work of redecorating the interior of the church will be postponed until spring.

Mrs. Joseph Evans is ill and under the care of Dr. Sherman of Stone Ridge. Her many friends are wishing for a speedy recovery.

All are glad to know that V. B. Cross, who underwent an operation at the Benedictine Hospital Wednesday, is improving.

Carl Landers and wife are visiting Mr. Landers's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Christiana.

The installation of the newly elected officers of the Rondout Valley Lodge, K. of P., took place in their hall Tuesday evening.

Word Usage

The words "sanitarium" and "sanatorium" are generally used interchangeably, although "sanitarium" is sometimes restricted to a place where hygienic conditions are prophylactic as distinguished from one where therapeutic agencies are employed. "Sanitorium" is a corrupt form "sanitarium."

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Wednesday, January 12.

Genia Zielinska, Polish-American coloratura soprano who has been heard frequently in operatic roles, will feature a salon concert at 8.00 through WEAF, WJAR and WGY for the first radio high light Wednesday. At the same time the well known vaudeville team of Bill and John Mitchell will render popular selections through WJZ, WBZ, KDKA and KYW. Lucille Chalfant, who rose from the ranks of the chorus to one of America's leading coloratura sopranos, will be the soloist with the Shilkret concert orchestra in a WJZ Blue Network broadcast at 9:00. WGY, WEAF, WCAE and WRC will radiate the light comic opera, "Iolanthe," at 10.30. Ford and Glenn, harmony team, have joined the ranks of WLW's entertainers and will take over the Cincinnati microphone at 10.40.

Denies Coolidge Mexican Charges

General Miguel Pina Denies That Mexican Naval Reserve Officer Commanded Gun Running Vessel Taking Arms To Liberals.

Mexico City, Jan. 12 (AP).—General Miguel Pina, under secretary of war and navy, has given denial to the assertion made in President Coolidge's message to Congress that a Mexican naval reserve officer commanded a gun running vessel taking arms to the Liberals in Nicaragua.

"I categorically deny that any Mexican naval officer has left Mexico for Nicaragua on such a commission," General Pina said. "I also declare it is untrue that there is a naval reserve of any kind in our country."

President Coolidge in his message to Congress said in part: I have the most conclusive evidence that arms and munitions in large quantities have been on several occasions since August, 1926, shipped to the revolutionists (Liberals) in Nicaragua. Boats carrying these munitions have been fitted out in Mexican ports, and some of the munitions have been fitted out in Mexican ports, and some of the munitions bear evidence of having belonged to the Mexican government. It also appears that the ships were fitted out with the full knowledge of, and in some cases with the encouragement of, Mexican officials and were in one instance, at least, commanded by a Mexican naval reserve officer.

IT WAS THE LUCK OF WAR

By H. M. EGBERT

(Copyright by W. G. Chapman.)

"THE sentence of this court is that you are to be shot at daybreak."

The young English officer spoke to the young German, caught within the British lines without uniform. Such an offense carries only one penalty with it in warfare. The spy is too dangerous a man to be dealt with in any other way.

The German smiled ironically. The sergeant in charge of him conducted him to the guardhouse, but not before he had cast a meaning glance at Lieutenant Denis, who had communicated to him the court's decision.

All the while the court-martial was being held a German big gun was hammering away at a spot behind the British lines. It was a 42-centimeter howitzer, and was being fired apparently under the belief that some vital line of communication existed there. And the shells had been exploding nearer, each with a devastating uprush of soil and tree trunks.

The night wore away. The prisoner in the guardhouse heard the gun playing without cessation. He had nerved himself to meet his fate. He had no fear, for that was the lot of a captured spy. Nor had he a sense of injustice. But he knew that Denis would come.

Denis came at four o'clock when he returned from duty. He found the prisoner waiting for him, smoking on the bunk.

"Well, Krauss?" said Denis.

"I was expecting you," said the other. "Lord, Denis, what a world away we are from Montclair!"

Denis nodded and gulped. "It was a hard thing to have to do, although we were not exactly the best of neighbors at Montclair," he said.

Krauss waved his hand deprecatingly. "I am glad it was not my fate to have to do it to you," he said. "Do you remember when we used to run for the New York train in the mornings?"

"And we always walked home together at night," said Denis.

"Yes. That was when we were good neighbors. What a pity you ever mortgaged that piece of property to me!"

"I had to raise some money quickly for business purposes," said Denis.

"And I had to foreclose," answered Krauss. "Your business ventures were not successful."

"They would have been if you hadn't shut down on me," answered the Englishman. "But what's the good of thinking over those things now? This beastly war finished me. You know my business interests were largely with England. I had to enlist—should have done so anyway, though. Got my commission after our first fight. I wonder what my wife—"

He checked himself, and the German looked at him curiously. "So you are married?" he asked, evidently pleased with the news. "I should have been by now. But Kitty Loft promised to wait for me when I sailed. That was three months or so before you left, wasn't it? She'll wait for me till the end of time—that girl. Denis, I want you to write a note to her informing her."

He broke off, for the first time filled with evident emotion. Denis nodded. "I'll let her know," he said.

"Do you know, I always thought you cared for Miss Loft," said Krauss, watching the other strangely. "Of course I regarded you as something of a rival until I learned that she cared for me. Whish!"

The exclamation was caused by a shattering explosion from the big gun. A sentry came to the door. "It's knocked down the camp commandant's house, sir," he explained.

"Yes?" inquired Denis, rising. He stretched out his hand to Krauss.

"I'll see you in the morning," said Krauss, with ghastly humor.

Denis left him. Krauss paced his cell, smiling. He had loved Kitty devotedly, and, though she had promised to wait for him, he had a little fear that Denis . . . well, Denis was married, and there was no fear now. Sometime they would meet again, Kitty and he, in that land where all good things come true.

At six o'clock the guard came for him. He was led a few paces away from the guardhouse, to where a file of soldiers was drawn up. Their rifles were held in their hands at the slope. Krauss and Denis nodded.

"No," said Krauss, as the sergeant began to fasten a white handkerchief about his eyes. "I'll take it with my eyes open," he said.

The sergeant looked at Denis, who nodded. The rifles were raised. Krauss stood facing them. At that moment his face was singularly calm.

"Whee-ee-ee!" sang a big shell from the distance. Denis was waiting for it to fall before giving the command to fire. The sound came nearer and nearer. Suddenly the air was filled with flame. A terrific din was in their ears. Krauss was raised high in the air and flung down bodily into the grass.

Slowly the sulphurous fumes died away. Krauss opened his eyes. Where the guardhouse had been there was not even the fragment of a structure. And where had been the rolling meadow was only a deep, barren pit, still full of dust and smoke.

Out of the smoke a hand's breadth away, emerged the face of Denis. His eyes were open and he was looking at Krauss. The two men continued to regard each other in silence for perhaps a minute. Then Denis slowly raised himself.

His uniform was hanging from him in tatters. One arm hung limply at his side. But otherwise he did not seem to be injured. Krauss raised himself to a sitting position. Blood was dripping from his shoulder where a fragment of the shell had struck him.

All about them there was absolute silence, except for the sudden outpouring of a lark's song, high overhead. They watched each other with a grim question in their eyes.

There remained nothing at all of the firing squad, except perhaps some mutilated bodies, buried under fifty tons of earth. The force of the explosion happened to have hurled the two men in one direction, while it buried the rest. That was all. It was the unappealable, inexorable law of war.

Presently Denis extracted his first-aid bandage, and, crawling toward Krauss, began to bandage his arm. Krauss submitted in silence, wincing a little as the stripped flesh was exposed under the sleeve. Denis wound the bandage about the wounded limb with deliberation. When he had finished he put his head on one side and surveyed his work critically. Then Krauss spoke for the first time.

"Rather strange," he suggested, "to bandage up a man who is to die in a few minutes."

Denis looked at him steadily. "That sentence cannot be executed, Krauss," he said.

"Why?" inquired Krauss.

"Because there is nothing to prevent you from taking your chance at crawling back to your lines. Look!"

Where the British outposts had been the earth was piled into a succession of pits and caverns by the big guns. It was a No Man's Land of desolation.

"You aren't going to kill me, then?" inquired the German.

"No," answered Denis. "We are both out of action now," he added, looking at his arm.

"Permit me," said Krauss. And, taking out his first-aid bandage from his knapsack, he began to cut away the sleeve of the other's wounded arm and to bind up the wound.

"That's about even, I think," he said, when he had finished, looking critically at his work. "Now, I want to ask you a question. Why didn't you kill me? Why don't you do it now? You are able to fire your revolver with your left hand, and I am unarmed. Is it because of the Montclair days?"

"No," answered Denis.

"It isn't heaping coals of fire on my head because I foreclosed on that mortgage of yours?"

"No," said Denis again.

"Why, then?"

"Because I don't have to, and I don't want the job of sending news of your death to—to Miss Loft," said Denis. "Are you satisfied?"

"Entirely so."

"Then let me recommend you to get out as quick as you can before the ambulances come up," said Denis.

Krauss held out his hand, and Denis, after an instant's pause, took it. "Good luck!" he said.

"The luck of war," answered the other, as he crawled out of the pit.

And Denis, weak and weary from his wound, watched the spy's slow progress through the grass until he disappeared in the distance. Perhaps he had done wrong to let him go, he thought—but then, he was no executioner; and how could he write to his wife that he had put to death the man whom she had once loved and who thought that she still loved him?

Friendship's Reward

European Flu Not Expected in U. S.

Influenza Epidemic in Europe Not Expected To Find Root In This County—Prevalence of Influenza In America Today.

Washington, Jan. 12 (AP).—The tide of the present European influenza epidemic is not expected to sweep across to this side of the Atlantic ocean and precipitate a repetition of the 1918 scourge that took a toll of thousands of lives.

While on guard for any dangerous outbreak here, the United States public health service feels confident the European epidemic will not find root in this country through immigrants to any appreciable extent. There is a prevalence of influenza in America today, they admitted, but it is not comparable to the 1918 epidemic and is running a mild course similar to the outbreak of the past two years.

Having inquired of the League of Nations concerning the European situation, the American health authorities express the belief that the influenza on that continent is mostly of a mild but particularly contagious nature and the fatalities generally have resulted from complications from the disease. The League of Nations, however, has pictured somewhat of a serious picture in three nations, Switzerland, France and England. Switzerland has received the brunt of the epidemic and has been obliged to close its schools and establish a curfew in places of public entertainment. Spain also had a severe outbreak but details are lacking. In other countries the disease is mild with but few deaths.

Nurses Learning To Play Bridge

The nursing staff of the Kingston City Hospital has organized a Bridge Club which meets to play every Monday evening in the Nurses' Home. The playing of bridge is a part of the training to assist the nurses in helping to pass the time for convalescent patients who enjoy cards. It was found that a number of the student nurses did not know how to play bridge, and for that reason the club was organized.

Almost Impossible to Fool Master of Magic

A student of the history of magic, he had collected a large library of the literature of magic, containing many rare volumes, and few persons were more familiar with magicians of the past and their feats than was Houdini, writes William Johnston in the New York Times.

Yet he was always eager to hear about new stunts. The surest way to get an audience with him was to tell him you had a new trick. He immediately wanted to see it and learn how it was done.

One night when he was at the New York Hippodrome, just about ten minutes before it was time for him to appear in his act, word was brought to him that a young man with a new trick wanted to see him. Houdini bounded out of his dressing room to meet his visitor.

"What have you got?" he asked eagerly.

"I can stop the beating of my pulse at will."

"Let's see you do it," demanded the magician.

The young man extended his arm. Houdini felt his wrist. His pulse was beating normally.

"Now watch," said the visitor.

Houdini felt the pulse again. No movement of the pulse could be detected.

"Do it again," said Houdini.

The young man complied, beginning to feel triumphant that the trick was baffling the great master.

He never had seen the trick before, but his logical mind reasoned that the easiest way to stop the pulse beats would be to apply pressure to the artery. He suspected that the effect was produced by a pad under the arm, and sure enough it was.

As Others See Us

An aspiring candidate, with a keen sense of humor, relates an unique slant that he got on his own rather dubious position before the recent election. Several weeks before November 2 he approached a man in his district in order to see what his chances might be with one who was known to vote a split ticket.

"Did you know that I was running for councilman, Sam?" the politician asked optimistically.

"Yes, I knew that you were running," reluctantly replied the nonpartisan voter.

"How did you know that I was running?"

"Well, George told me."

"What did he say about my running when he told you?" the candidate hopefully questioned.

"Well," more reluctantly, replied the voter, "he didn't say anything—he just laughed."

Pneumonia's Ravages

Pneumonia headed the list of diseases that caused the greatest number of deaths among our soldiers in the World war. More than 40,000 died from this cause. Of these, probably 24,000 resulted from the influenza-pneumonia pandemic which swept through every camp and cantonment in this country and caused thousands of deaths in the expeditionary forces.

Cantonese Seize American Estate

London, Jan. 12 (AP).—A Reuter despatch from Peking says Cantonese troops are seizing American property at Shaowu and at other points in Fukien province. The American authorities have ordered the missionaries to quit immediately posts in Fukien and prepare for immediate departure for other centers.

Fukien province borders on the coast and lies to the southeast of the middle Yangtse valley in which Hankow and Kiukiang, scene of recent anti-foreign riots, are situated. Shaowu is in northern Fukien.

An Amoy despatch last Friday reported that the position of the missionaries at Shaowu and also at Kienning was "desperate".

Soldiers were said to have commandeered schools, churches, hospitals and even missionary homes Native Christians were also affected.

Ancients Made War on Tooth Troubles

Dental therapeutics dates from a very remote epoch. It is not known when this art commenced, but it is well known that the Egyptians practiced it to a considerable extent. On a papyrus scroll estimated to date back 3,700 years before Christ, which was found buried at the feet of the god Anubis, there were found written remedies against painful molars and a way to alleviate other troubles of the teeth by means of pulverized drugs. The art of "filling" is very old. Egyptian mummies have been found with molar cavities very carefully closed. Others have artificial teeth which show that in very ancient times this dental process was known. The Chinese cured toothache 2,700 years before our era. One of their methods was to put iron rust in the cavities.

Music of the Desert

During the holy month of Ramadhan, when the Mussulmans feast only after sundown, the Sudanese reveille awakes the sleeping soldier at midnight. It is the voice of the desert itself, expressed by sons of the desert. The golden notes of massed bugles rising in the silent night, and the swelling roll of the drums, are thrilling beyond description, because they are the vocal spirit of an intangible something that always touches the soul of man. The deep velvet sky, the glowing planets, the vastness and silence of the desert, the utter absence of distraction, make it a blending of perfect beauty; so perfect that one scarcely breathes for fear of breaking an illusion.—William A. Anderson in Adventure Magazine.

Forgetting a grouch will make it leave home.

Models of the Firmament

A model of the heavens, which is remarkable in a great many ways, and which was constructed in Berlin some time ago, is about to make a tour of the world and will be shown in all the large cities. The spectators enter a large dome-shaped concrete building which is unlighted. Suddenly thousands of glittering stars appear in what seems to be the infinite sky. More marvelous, suns and planets begin their majestic march across the heavens. In a few moments intricate celestial motions are revealed so simple that you, who perhaps never have opened an astronomy book, can understand mysteries of the universe that puzzled scientists for centuries.

Newburgh Fire Worst in Years

Burned for Eight Hours Before it Was Brought Under Control—Kingston Street Rumors Show B. S. L. is Still Active.

Newburgh's $300,000 fire on Tuesday was discovered at 1:12 o'clock that morning by Policeman Haight who turned in an alarm to which the fire department responded a few minutes later, and it was not until 9:30 o'clock that morning that the fire was considered as under control. In response to calls for assistance fire companies from Marlborough, Middletown, Walden, Beacon, Cornwall and Central Valley responded and assisted in fighting the flames.

The fire broke out in the wholesale confectionery building of Shapiro Brothers at 11 Colden street, and spread in both directions on Colden street and on South Water street, involving nine buildings which were totally or partly destroyed. A dozen business houses were damaged and sixteen families made homeless. The fire was in many respects the most disastrous Newburgh has experienced in many years.

Thermometers registered five above zero when the alarm sounded, and a strong breeze that swept from the northeast carried biting teeth with it. There were numerous casualties among the firemen from injuries and exposure.

Business Concerns Involved.

The business houses involved included Shapiro Brothers, wholesale confectioners; M. Siegfried, shoe repairer; Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., Harry A. Page, store fixtures; Hill Dry Cold Refrigerator Company, Mastin Seed Company, Dr. Samuel Barr, Ladies' Goods Store, Walter V. Martin, awnings, and Newburgh Butter Company.

Served Injured Firemen.

Firemen taken to the hospital include Reed Haight, who was frozen stiff at the wheel of Brewster Hook and Ladder and completely collapsed; Kenneth King, Highland Steamer, had laceration of the wrist, and George Davis of Cornwall, injured about the abdomen by a flying nozzle, and Assistant Chief Dale Coleman, cut with glass; Arthur Fox, Victory Engine, was cut and injured about the arm, when thrown while single handed he tried to handle a stream, and Joseph Verdino, Brewster, had his feet frozen. Fox was treated by Dr. Harlan Page.

Kingston Not Called.

The Kingston fire department did not receive a call for assistance, and the street rumors that some twenty odd firemen from this city were hurried to Newburgh by a special train were unfounded. It was also reported that dynamite had been sent for, but according to the fire department no call for the explosive was received.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—The stock market displayed a complete reversal of form today, selling down rather sharply during the morning, but turning upward again in the early afternoon. Early losses in the active issues ran from 1 to 3 points, but most of these were substantially reduced or wiped out in the afternoon rally.

Easy credit conditions, reflected in the low renewal rate of 4 per cent for money, and the possibility of an early reduction in the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate, furnished the basis for operations for the advance.

Placing of the Woolworth stock on a $5 annual basis, after the recent declaration of a stock dividend was regarded as a bullish factor, both the "old" and "new" stocks moving up over 2 points. The weekly steel trade reviews reported a small increase in orders, but steel and pig iron prices declined.

Brokers continued to report a heavy investment demand, but it centered largely in the rails. Atchison was again the leader in that group, soaring close to 168, while Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred moved up 2½ points to 51¾, the highest since 1925. Hudson and Manhattan, common and preferred, touched 43¼ and 80½, respectively, the highest prices since they were listed in October, 1924.

Heavy trading in Anaconda Copper was one of the few features of the industrial list. Heavy liquidation of the motors was believed to have been inspired by the fear of further price cuts.

Quotations given by Parker, McElroy & Co., members N. Y. Stock Exchange, 120 Broadway, New York city, branch office, 260 Fair street, Kingston, N. Y. 'Phone 295.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of my dear father, Theodoric Quick, who passed away January 12, 1926.

Dearest father, thou has left us,
And our loss we deeply feel,
But it's God that has bereft us,
He can all our sorrows heal.
Yet again we hope to meet thee,
When the day of life is fled,
When in Heaven in joy to greet thee
Where no farewell tear is shed.

Bereaved daughter,

Double Inquiry Into President's Nicaragua Policy

Secretary Kellogg in Secret Session Explains to Senate Why U. S. Marines Are On Nicaraguan Soil—House Committee Adjourns Until Thursday.

Washington, Jan. 12 (AP).—A double inquiry into President Coolidge's Nicaraguan policy was begun today in Congress.

In a secret session that was prolonged through the afternoon, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee heard Secretary Kellogg explain why American marines are on Nicaraguan soil and why the United States has recognized one regime there while Mexico is sanctioning another.

At an open hearing the House Foreign Affairs Committee aired its own disagreements over the President's policy and adjourned until tomorrow.

An effort to call Secretary Kellogg before the House committee tomorrow was blocked by Representative Fairchild, Republican, New York, but when he sought also to have the committee adjourn for good, and drop the subject, Chairman Porter overruled him.

Kellogg Faces Borah.

In the Senate committee room Mr. Kellogg stated the Administration policy in general terms and then was questioned for hours by senators who do not agree with what has been done. One of those he faced across the committee table was Chairman Borah who has publicly declared the President's course to be without warrant, under international law.

The secretary of state did not take with him to the committee room the documentary evidence regarding Nicaragua and Mexico which is on file in his department. This evidence was referred to by Mr. Coolidge in his message as showing that arms are going to the opposition party in Nicaragua from Mexico, with the apparent encouragement of the Mexican government itself.

No Action in House.

The two hour morning session of the House Foreign Affairs Committee resulted in no action, although several pending resolutions dealing with Nicaragua and Mexico were debated by committee members amid frequent mention of way and means of "averting war".

Balked in his effort to bring Secretary Kellogg to the House end of the Capitol, Representative Moore, Democrat, Virginia, said an attempt was being made to "blind bridle" the committee, and Representative Cole, Republican, Iowa, replied with an appeal to Democratic committee members not to "put our government on trial".

Senate committeemen generally declined to discuss Mr. Kellogg's statement, but several who are opposed to the Administration's policy, said no facts had been presented which had altered their view.

A Regular Butcher

One day little Betty heard her mother giving a detailed account of a recent tonsil operation to an afternoon caller.

"Yes, I had a perfectly dreadful time. My doctor was a regular butcher," said Mrs. B——

To her surprise, a few days later she overheard the following conversation between her small daughter and a little neighbor girl:

"Some day I am going to have my tonsils taken out."

"Are you going to the hospital like my sister did?"

"No," replied Betty, "I am just going down to the butcher shop where mother had hers cut out."—Indianapolis News.

Insects on Increase

For a century and more scientists have been listing and classifying insects found in the various countries, hoping they might have, some time, a complete list of the insect family, but the task seems to have no end, new species being found in all lands, so many, in fact, that more than 6,000 are being listed, each year, says Nature Magazine.

The scientists tend strongly to the belief that new species are being provided by some means, for each year discoveries are made of which no scientist in the past ever heard and man must admit in the bug listing business he is a long way behind.

European Air Lines

There are 42 commercial air lines operating daily to all parts of central and eastern Europe, including Moscow. Seventeen lines radiate from Berlin. There are many small companies, all now consolidated with the Deutsche Lufthansa. There are 120 commercial planes and 160 pilots. One hundred and ten planes are constantly in working order. In 1925 the German commercial air service carried approximately 138,000 passengers and 6,000 tons of freight. In 1925 the commercial service in passengers and freight carried and miles traveled tripled its volume of business over the preceding year.

Chinese Official Journal

The Tsun-Tse-Kwan-Pao of Peking, China, recently celebrated its thousandth birthday anniversary, and is said to be the oldest newspaper in the world. A recent article says that "every issue of this newspaper has been carefully preserved and filed in the official archives of the palace at Peking. The penalty for making a misstatement in this newspaper has been decapitation, and it is said that more than a few of its editors have suffered this fate in the past. Since the revolution the paper has changed its title to Tsun-Pao-Kuan-Pao, which means "Official Government Journal."

Transfer Corby To Po'keepsie

Thomas A. Corby, who for some time has been the very efficient manager of construction and maintenance for the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Co. in Kingston, has been transferred to the Poughkeepsie office, where he will be in charge of an important division of the company's affairs. He is succeeded in Kingston by Arthur L. Colligan, an electrical engineer connected for some time with the Central Hudson interests.

Society Notes

New Paltz, Jan. 12.—Mr. and Mrs. Irving D. Kortright announce the engagement of their daughter, Alice C., to Harold DuBois, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred DuBois of this place.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Judson Styles of No. 5 Russell street announce the engagement of their daughter, Hazel, to Michael J. Doyle of Brooklyn.

Announce Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Dohnken of No. 89 Abruyn street announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy, to Charles McGinnis of No. 67 Abruyn street, son of Mrs. Charles McGinnis, formerly of Rifton.

Twentieth Century Club.

The Twentieth Century Club held its first 1927 meeting on Monday afternoon with Mrs. Cranston. The roll call was "Worthwhile Plays," and was followed by the presentation of a modern play, "Suppressed Desires," given by Mrs. Cranston assisted by Miss Osterhoudt and Miss Ingalls. The meeting on January 24 will be with Miss Ingalls.

A Pleasant Party.

A party was held at the home of Miss Florence Scully, 43 Brewster street, on Sunday evening. Dancing and singing were enjoyed during the evening. Solos were rendered by John Duffy and Ray Corbett entertained by jigging. Among those present were the Misses Mary Wojdan, Helen Wojdan, Harriet Wojdon, Anna Gibbons, Hilda Kelly, Anna Sweeney, Tillie Golgoskie, and Florence Scully, the Messrs. Steve Wojdan, Tom Hines, B. Hines, A. Cannon, John Golgoskie, Ray Corbett, Frank Duffy, John Duffy, Bill and John Scully. All departed at a late hour after a most enjoyable evening.

College Women's Club Banquet.

The members of the Kingston College Women's Club enjoyed their annual banquet at the Coffee Shop of The Governor Clinton Hotel on Monday evening, covers being laid for thirty-one guests. The floral decorations were wild roses while the favors were mints in gaily colored tarlatan basketlike containers. Following the elaborate banquet, cards were played, the tally cards being very clever. They were miniature college girls in cap and gown and spectacles. Miss Jane Van Etten was chairman of the committee having charge of this delightful social event.

The Coterie.

The Coterie resumed its regular meetings on Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Piper being the hostess. There were two excellent and very interesting papers given. Miss Thompson had the first on "The Maori People," while "Legends of the Maori," was the subject of Mrs. O'Connor's paper. Mrs. Russell told interestingly of the initial meeting relative to the big Ulster County Sesquicentennial pageant to be given next summer. The next Coterie meeting will be held on Friday evening, January 21, instead of on Saturday afternoon, January 22, with Mrs. Ellis as hostess. This change is made because of the open meeting of The Federation of Women's Clubs being held on January 22.

Sorosis.

Mrs. Graham was the hostess of this week's meeting of Sorosis on Monday afternoon. Following the business session, Mrs. Grove Brown gave an admirable paper on "Discovery of Gold and Western Immigration," following it up with pertinent readings from "The Covered Wagon." A social hour followed in the nature of a farewell to Mrs. Ramsey, who with Mr. Ramsey is about to leave for South America and later South Africa. Mrs. Lasher, president of the club, presented Mrs. Ramsey with two of David Grayson's books as a gift from the club, bespeaking their well wishes for a most delightful trip and safe return. During the social hour several vocal solos by Miss Alderfer, accompanied by Mrs. Graham, were enjoyed and light refreshments were served. Next Monday Sorosis will meet with Mrs. Van Wagenen when there will be an Open Forum, Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Brigham being the committee in charge.

Lowell Club.

The Lowell Club met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry P. Van Wagenen on John street. An admirable and interesting sketch on "Cervantes" was given by Mrs. Atkins, after which Mrs. Cole gave a fine book review of "Don Quixote." The Roll Call was current events. Final arrangements were made for the entertaining of the Kingston Federation of Women's Clubs on Saturday, January 22, when the Lowell Club as hostess club will bring Mrs. Purdy of Mount Vernon, State Federation president, to Kingston as the speaker of the afternoon. This open meeting will be in the chapel of the First Reformed Church. As Tuesday's meeting of the Lowell Club occurred on the wedding anniversary of Dr. and Mrs. Van Wagenen, a social hour was enjoyed, after which light refreshments were served. Next Tuesday the Lowell Club will meet with Mrs. Adams.

Immortal Love

Love lives on, and hath a power to bless when they who loved are hidden in the grave.—Lowell.

WHY
Is the Reputable Investment House a Valuable Asset to the Community it Serves?

Because it conserves through the medium of sound securities—the existing wealth of that community.

Also, the interest and dividends received from well invested capital increases the community wealth and puts into circulation money that otherwise would not be available for the necessities and luxuries of life; all of which promotes general prosperity.

In every community each year, thousands of dollars are thrown away through the purchase of worthless securities! An analysis has proven this is due primarily to a lack of discretion in the selection of an investment house, or the promiscuous buying from salesmen with whom the prospective investor is wholly unfamiliar.

No investment house can hope to continue in business year after year unless it completely satisfies its clientele. For to be wholly successful, a repeat business is necessary.

Time is the tester of all things, and our successful record over a period of years has earned for us an enviable reputation.

In selecting your January investments, we would be pleased to have you consider our list of offerings, yielding from 5% to 7.40% interest.

No matter how small or large your investment may be, it s our pleasure to serve you.

There will be an anniversary Mass for the repose of the soul of Catherine Schatzel at St. Peter's Church on Thursday morning at 7 o'clock.

New Paltz, Jan. 12.—The funeral of A. A. Dingee, who was a resident of this community about thirty years ago, was held at St. Andrews, N. Y., on Monday.

George E. Jocelyn died on Tuesday, January 11, at his home in Shandaken. He is survived by his wife, Mollie S.; one daughter, Hattie L. Johnson, and a son, Charles D. of Ellenville. Funeral on Thursday at 2 o'clock from the late residence, Shandaken.

The remains of John Adami, husband of Frances Smith, formerly of this city, arrived here today from Ozone Park, L. I., where he died on January 8. Funeral from the mortuary chapel of A. Carr & Son at 3:30 p. m. Interment in Wiltwyck cemetery.

Susan M. Stuyvesant, wife of the late George M. Kimmens, died at 85 Washington avenue on Sunday, January 9. She is survived by one son, Arthur S.; one daughter, Mrs. Harriet G. Brodhead, and one grandson, Dr. Stuyvesant H. Brodhead, all of this city. The funeral was held Tuesday evening. Interment was in the Kensico Cemetery.

Mrs. W. C. Rose, one of the oldest residents of Ellenville, died at her home on South Main street, Tuesday. She had been afflicted with a stroke. She is survived by one son, W. C. Douglas, head of the Rose & Douglas Company, dealers in hardware, also a daughter, Katherine. Deceased was the mother of the late J. Graham Rose of this city.

Henry A. Balz of New York city died this morning at the Kingston City Hospital after a brief illness. Mr. Balz and his wife had been visiting at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Walter A. DeGraff, at No. 54 Lucas avenue, when he was taken ill and removed to the hospital. His wife fell and broke her hip several weeks ago. Beside his wife he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. DeGraff of this city and Mrs. A. Brocan of Brooklyn. Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed. Mr. Balz was senior member of the firm conducting the DeGraff Drapery & Linen Shoppe.

Kerhonkson, Jan. 12.—Annie Elizabeth Faust, wife of Herman Gerner of this place, died at her home January 1. Mrs. Gerner suffered a long illness last spring but was much improved until about four weeks ago, when she was taken with a relapse. Mrs. Gerner had been a resident of Kerhonkson many years. She was a woman who won and always retained the esteem and affection of everyone who had the good fortune to meet her. She was an ideal mother, thoroughly devoted to the welfare of her family and she has left behind a record of loving achievement, of neighborly sympathy, of devoted motherhood. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, a son, Herman Gerner, Jr., of Brooklyn, and two daughters, Mabel and Marie, at home. Friends extend heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family.

Mrs. Margaret Dugan, widow of James Leonard of Highland, died very suddenly at her home Tuesday. She had been an invalid for a number of years but bore her sufferings with great Christian fortitude. She was a devout member of St. Augustine Church of that village and took an active part in all their undertakings. She will be deeply mourned by her many relatives and friends. She is survived by two sons, two brothers, Michael Dugan of Gardiner, George Dugan of Poughkeepsie, and two sisters, Mrs. Sara McMullen of California and Mrs. Mary Costello of this city. She was a sister of the deceased William J. Dugan of this city. Funeral Thursday, at 11 a. m., from St. Augustine Church, Highland.

Byron Whitaker, formerly of this city, who died suddenly after a short illness of pneumonia at his home in Freeport, L. I., Sunday, January 9, was a son of the late William H. Whitaker, for many years a leading sash and blind manufacturer and woodworker on Franklin street. He is survived by his wife, who before marriage was Mary Van Keuren of Kingston; two sons, Raymond and Harry of Freeport; a brother, Charles, of Highland; and three sisters, Mrs. Oliver Heiser of Brooklyn, Mrs. A. A. Walker of Lee, Mass., and Mrs. Lillian Conner of this city. Mr. Whitaker will be remembered by older residents of Kingston as fielder on the champion Leader baseball team, of which his brother, Granville Whitaker, was also a member, being a catcher. Funeral at his home in Freeport, L. I., Tuesday evening. The remains were brought to Kingston today for interment in Wiltwyck Cemetery.

Closed on Account of Death.

DeGraff's Drapery & Linen Shoppe will be closed for several days on account of the death of H. A. Balz, senior member of the firm. Mr. Balz died this morning at the Kingston City Hospital.

Pay Water Rent Now.

For the convenience of those paying their water bills the water board office will be open Saturday afternoons. January 29 is the last day that water rents may be paid without fees.

Musician Found Much of Interest on Tou

To go on a concert tour lasting fo five years is in itself something of an achievement, but when it embraces not only the temperate and torrid zones but the frigid zone as well, the achievement verges upon the phenomenal.

And yet Laszlo Schwartz, well known as a violinist and composer in this country, has come back to these shores with much music of interest which he has gathered during his travels.

"In the Fiji Islands," Mr. Schwartz related, "the heat is terrible. Combined with the dampness it is death and destruction to musical instruments. I asked how the piano was and was told 'We are airing it.'

"The day of our first concert, the soundpost of my violin came unglued and nothing would make it stick. I tried everything I could think of, but to no avail, so I simply had to tell them that there would be a concert but no violin.

"Sumatra seemed to be the hottest place in the world. A violin will go to pieces there any time. I had to play with clamps on mine to keep it together, which, you may imagine, did not improve the tone.

"In the Fiji Islands we heard a native chorus of 600 with the most marvelous basses I have ever heard anywhere. They have an amazing sense of harmony, like the American negro, but much more intricate. They learn tunes from a phonograph, and then harmonize themselves. They were learning the Tannhaeuser overture while I was there, each member of the band memorizing harmonies from the phonograph.

"I was asked by a rich native how much my charges were for a concert and when I told him the next question was: 'How long will the concert be?' 'About an hour,' I said. 'Oh,' he replied, 'But I can hire a man who will play for four hours for the amount without taking his hat off the stage!'"—John Alan Haughton in Musical America.

The night was made for sleep and the day for lying about how little of it we get.

Normal Whipped For First Time

Losing their first game on home court in three yars, New Paltz Normal fell before the brilliant tactics of East Stroudsburg, Penn., on Friday night by a 83 to 33 score. Coach Crayser who brought Poughkeepsie High School to the State Championship in 1921, now has Stroudsburg under his tutelage and this aggregation has lost but one contest in two years.

Fresh from giving Eastman College a beating in the afternoon, the downstate outfit administered a second defeat to the schoolmasters at night. E. Stroudsburgh ran up a fifteen point lead at half time for at the expiration of the second period the score was: E. Stroudsburg 30, New Paltz 15. C. Secore and Kowalske did the main scoring for the visitors with 25 and 20 points. "Rusty" Van Wagenen was the leading point gatherer for the village team with seventeen markers.

Sunday School League Notes

This evening three games will be played in the Senior Division of the Sunday School Basketball League. The first game of the evening, which will start at 8 o'clock, will be between the Congregational and First Dutch teams. The second game will be between the Comforter and Clinton Avenue. The third game will be between the Redeemers and Port Ewen. The Port Ewen lads are on the winning road now, and they expect to repeat tonight. They are in to break the Redeemers' winning streak of seven (7) straight games.

Four Teams Bid For Zach Wheat

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—A 39-year-old baseball veteran released unconditionally by the Brooklyn Robins was the center of spirited bidding by four major league teams today.

Although Zach Wheat has spent eighteen years in big league work, magnates have no desire to see him escape to the wide open spaces of his midwest farm. Chicago Cubs, Washington Senators, New York Giants and New York Yankees all are seeking the slugging outfielder's services.

While three of the teams were believed to value Wheat chiefly as a pinch hitting acquisition, the Giants offered possibilities to Zach of entering the regular lineup. The passing of Irish Meusel and the illness of Ross Young have badly crippled John McGraw's outfield, although one prospective replacement was secured in the four cornered trade which will bring George Harper here from the Phillies.

Sport Briefs Of All Sorts

(By The Associated Press.)

Basketball dribblers of Princeton and Pennsylvania, victors in their opening eastern intercollegiate league encounters, will play tonight in Princeton. At the same time, Columbia, champion team of last season, will meet Dartmouth in Hanover.

An advance sale in excess of $50,000, one of the largest in the history of Madison Square Garden, indicates a capacity turnout for Friday night's return welterweight battle between Eddie Roberts of Tacoma, Washington, and Joe Dundee of Baltimore. Although Roberts won their first fight with a quick knockout, betting odds have switched to Dundee as favorite.

WHAT HAPPENED IN THE ROPED ARENA LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press.)

Albany, N. Y.—Jack DeMave, Hoboken, N. J., beat Jack Warren, Chicago, twelve rounds.

Minneapolis — My Sullivan, St. Paul, stopped Glenn Lage, Des Moines, eight rounds. Billy Light, St. Paul, outpointed Jimmy Ryan, Des Moines, six rounds. Joey Fliegel, Minneapolis, beat Larry Coleman, St. Paul, six rounds. Honeyboy Conrad, Chicago, defeated Ted Coleman, St. Paul, four rounds.

Paris—Georges Carpentier fought Jack Walker in an exhibition bout, no decision. Romero, French welterweight champion, beat Alf Rohs, fifteen rounds.

West Palm Beach, Fla.—Sergeant Jack Adams, New York, defeated "Wild Bill" Reed, Columbus, Ohio, ten rounds. Bobby Marlott, Philadelphia, knocked out Teddy Taylor, Lake Worth, Fla., four rounds.

Vernon, Cal.—Mushy Callahan, junior welterweight champion, beat Joe Jawson, Milwaukee, ten rounds.

YOUNG STRIBLING ENTERS HEAVYWEIGHT TOURNEY.

Macon, Ga., Jan 12 (AP)—The Macon Telegraph said today it was informed in a long distance telephone interview last night with "Pa" Stribling, father of Young Stribling, that the Georgia boxer signed yesterday with Tex Rickard for a bout in Madison Square Garden February 25, with either Jack Delaney, Jack Sharkey or Paolino Uzcudun, Spanish champion.

The newspaper quoted "Pa" Stribling in New York as saying that he and Walk Miller, recently made Stribling's manager, had obtained Rickard's agreement to enter Stribling in the proposed heavyweight elimination series to find an opponent for Gene Tunney, the champion.

Ancient Paper Sarcastic

In a recent cleaning of the cellar of the University of Pennsylvania library an old southern newspaper was discovered printed on the back of a piece of wallpaper.

The newspaper, called the Daily Citizen, was published in Vicksburg, Miss., July 2, 1863, by J. M. Swords. Following is a quotation from the paper:

"We are indebted to Major Gillespie for a steak of Confederate beef, alias mule. We have tried it and can assure our friends that if it is rendered necessary they need have no scruples at eating the meat. It is sweet, savory and tender, and so long as we have a mule left we are satisfied our soldiers will be content with it."

Institute's Good Work

The Institute of Politics is a movement inaugurated by the trustees of Williams college in September, 1919, and consists of annual sessions at which are discussed foreign affairs so as to promote a more sympathetic understanding of the problems and policies of other nations. This is done by offering courses of public lectures delivered by distinguished scholars and statesmen from foreign countries and by setting up round table and open conferences presided over by recognized authorities.

ROAD BUILDING

ENGINEERS AIDED BY SOIL EXPERTS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Knowledge of the properties, constituents, and behavior of different types of soil has not only an agricultural bearing but is of great importance to the highway engineer. Hence it often becomes necessary for the specialists of the bureau of soils of the United States Department of Agriculture to co-operate with those of the bureau of public roads in investigations in localities having peculiar soil conditions to throw light on problems in highway engineering.

It has been shown, for instance, that the clay soils in the eastern part of Texas and in the Piedmont region possess the properties indicated by a low ratio of silica to iron plus alumina, and are probably the best to meet the requirements of good highway subgrade material. In southeastern Ohio, again, it was found that hillside slipping of masses of soil and subsoil material in the extensive area of Upshur soils of that region had completely demolished sections of recently laid concrete roads. Similar destructive sliding connected with this type of soil has occurred in southwestern Pennsylvania. The program seems to be one that will require serious attention from highway engineers. Another example of the co-operation between soil and road experts is the Black Waxy belt of Texas, where, in the opinion of the soil expert, the black clay of the region is not the best material upon which to lay hard surfacing. It tends to swell and shrink according to extremes of moisture. Other available road material is advised for use in the subgrade.

Improved Highways Are Big Aid to the Farmer

Much has been written regarding the value of good roads to the farmer. Tax authorities have made elaborate statements as to cost of state highways to the ruralist and the advantages he gains in living adjacent to good roads. But these were mostly estimates with frail foundations and it was not until just recently that definite figures could be secured to prove the claims. And in this the newly developed roadside market appears to be the greatest contribution.

We are told that farm produce to the value of more than $2,116,000 a month is now sold direct to motorists from roadside booths and counters in the rural districts of the United States. This new market which lends itself extremely well to the disposal of second-grade products, or fruits and vegetables too ripe for distant shipping, has grown to an unusual business of $25,000,000 for the farmers fortunate enough to live along popular highways. This figure, it is stated, includes only the produce purchased direct from the small truck growers. The sale of fresh eggs, milk and butter to urban residents who drive to the farm, it is felt, would easily bring the figure to approximately $50,000,000 annually.

Indiana, it is claimed, possesses more miles of improved roads than any state in the Union. For this we are grateful, for good roads carry many benefits to the farmer, and when the costs can be justly distributed, Indiana agriculture is highly in favor of keeping up our reputation as a good-roads state.—Indiana Farmer's Guide.

Enormous Road Building Helps Develop Country

One of the countless direct results of the great development of the automobile industry is the enormous road-building program for the expenditure of $1,000,000,000 a year, to say nothing of the enormous upbuilding of all suburban communities. In many American cities, so building records show, suburban construction is larger than in the urban district itself. This development is looked upon as the direct result of the automobile and makes this invention probably the most important factor, both from an economic and social standpoint, in modern life.

Good Roads Hints

More than 900 miles of Texas is traversed by the Old Spanish trail.

• • •

The day is not far distant when grade crossings on trunk line roads will be a thing of the past.

• • •

A concrete bridge has been completed on the Lincoln highway 17 miles north of Laramie, Wyo. The improved roads about Laramie are reported to be in first-class condition.

• • •

Paving has begun on California's interstate connection crossing the sandhills of Imperial valley. When completed the road will replace a wooden plank road in service since 1916.

• • •

Plans are being made for the construction of a through highway from Heidelberg to Mannheim, Germany. The proposed road will be 29.5 feet wide. It will cross no other road at the same level and will run through no villages.

Eye Tests for Auto Drivers

Beginning Monday, January 17, all applicants for automobile driving licenses in New York state must pass certain eye tests, according to an announcement made by Charles A. Harnett, commissioner of the State Motor Vehicle Bureau. By this innovation Mr. Harnett writes he hopes to reduce the number of accidents by at least 10 per cent, since statistics show that a large proportion are due to faulty vision of drivers.

The tests will be made by the inspectors of the State Motor Vehicle Bureau when they give road tests in Kingston. Road violators will be looked after by State Troopers and the inspectors will look after road tests for operators, and revocation of licenses. Applicants for driving licenses will be asked to read a chart with letters of varied sizes.

Jewel-Bound Volumes Prized by Collectors

At the bottom of the Atlantic is a jewel-bound copy of Omar Khayyam. It was on its way to America in the ill-fated Titanic, which struck an iceberg on its first voyage and foundered A similar volume is, however, still in existence It is in the museum at Frankfort, and in its binding 21 opals are set.

Another jewel-bound book which was in the hands of a continental collector is a copy of "Romeo and Juliet." It represents the labor of two men for 18 months—Alberto Sangorski, who wrote and illuminated the vellum pages, and the craftsman who fixed the gems in the binding.

There are 400 precious stones in a setting of gold on the cover, and the weight of the book is about ten pounds. The jewels and their gold setting form hearts, doves and flowers emblematic of love. The red flowers are formed by clusters of rubies.

America possesses an illuminated copy of the poems of Keats, which is valued at something like $10,000. The poems are written on vellum and illustrated with original water colors. It is bound in morocco elaborately gold tooled, inlaid with over 4,400 pieces of colored leather, and set with over 1,000 precious stones set in gold. The book contains a miniature of Keats set in clusters of pearls and turquoises.
